New Era Hailed As Ruling Ends Mountain Rate

Better Times Ahead for Province; Wismer Seeks Passenger Fare Cut

Business and political leaders of the province look with pleased anticipation to better times ahead for British Columbia industries, following yesterday's announcement from Ottawa of the removal, effective July 1, of the mountain differential freight rate.

For the Provincial Government, the announcement was a victorious end to a 60-year battle against "a discrimination against this province and one of the chief drawbacks to our economic development."

Said Premier Byron S. Johnson:

"I know of no announcement in recent times that has given me greater satisfaction than the announcement by the Board of Transport Commissioners."

FURTHER EFFORTS

Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer, for whom the freight rate issue has been a personal fight for 25 years, and who presented the Province's case to the Transport Board, was particularly gratified. He was encouraged, as well, to further efforts, aimed at removal of disadvantageous railway passenger rates.

"Although a mountain differential on passenger rates was not dealt with during the hearing on freight charges, nevertheless it exists," he said. "It should be removed at the same time. The railways cannot retain their mountain differential on passenger rates while removing that differential on freight."

The direct saving to the Province of $3,500,000 is only one phase of the benefits of the edict.

BENEFIT MOST

Secondary industries of British Columbia are expected to benefit most from removal of the differential, and business leaders said yesterday the removal would permit these industries to invade Eastern markets, especially in the Prairie Provinces.

Food, metal and wood manufacturing plants will be able to expand their markets, competing on an equal footing with Prairie manufacturers.

At the same time, lower freight rates on imports from the East may be reflected in lower prices in British Columbia.

In Victoria, H. A. Wallace, managing director at Yarrows, Ltd., felt the reduced rates "will be exceptionally helpful to the shipbuilding industry on the British Columbia coast. Practically all steel and other shipbuilding materials used in ideal shipyards are brought here from Eastern Canada," he said.

Because the British Columbia yards have had to pay such high rates to have steel delivered, they have been in an unfavorable position when competing with Eastern shipyards, he noted. This situation will be considerably improved in so far as submitting bids on new ship construction is concerned, Mr. Wallace intimated.

Intent on Establishing Flying Mark

British Columbia Goes on Fast Time

As most British Columbians realized, time made a leap last night and clocks went ahead one hour at midnight to put British Columbia on daylight saving time.

If you are one of the estimated 10 per cent who forgot to put clocks ahead one hour, you had better do so today. Because the only service you will be synchronized with are the transportation services that cross provincial lines and remain on standard time.

Everybody else in the province is on daylight saving.

You won't have to worry about putting the clock back an hour until September 25, when daylight saving ends for this year.

Reeve Will Seek Esquimalt Seat

Esquimalt last night shaped up as the storm centre of the June 15 provincial election.

To an already turbulent situation, these explosive developments were added:

Reeve A. I. Thomas, of Esquimalt, announced that he would seek nomination;

The British Columbia Progressive Conservative executive, meeting in Vancouver, was unofficially reported to have ruled that P.C.'s in Esquimalt must "coalesce."

Progressive Conservatives in the sprawling riding make no secret of the fact they believe E. V. Finland, former M.L.A. and deputy speaker, was "jockeyed" out of the nomination in 1945, when Charles T. Beard, a Liberal, got the nomination and was elected.

BONA FIDE P.C.'S

To return the riding to a Conservative member within the Coalition, the P.C.'s have called a nominating convention for Wednesday at which attendance will be restricted to bona fide P.C.'s from the riding, which includes Esquimalt, Sooke, Mill Bay, Cobble Hill, Langford, Colwood, View Royal and other polling divisions. Their candidate, it was stated, would support Coalition.

John Fox, president of the Esquimalt association, said that his delegation would support Mr. Finland.

Mr. Beard, a Liberal, has sat in the House as a Coalitionist, without attending Liberal caucuses, but was in attendance at the Liberal convention in Vancouver earlier this month.

The three men seeking nomination are all pledged to back Coalition, but the storm centres around interpretation of the Hart Formula, under which Coalition nominations have been made.

RULING NEEDED

That made it appear that Hon. Herbert Anscomb, P.C. leader and co-leader of the Coalition Government, would have to bring down a ruling. At yesterday's executive meeting he was empowered to deal as his judgment directs with the Hart Formula.

The Vancouver meeting also extended "whole-hearted support to the continuation of coalition . . . with the Liberal party in the forthcoming election."

Nomination of any other candidate than Mr. Beard in Esquimalt would upset the Hart Formula, Coalition experts point out, since a candidate of the same political party as the previous member is called for. Mr. Finland defeated the present member in 1941 when Liberals and Conservatives opposed each other. In 1945, a joint convention chose Mr. Beard.

FORMULA BROKEN

The formula was broken at Revelstoke where Harry Johnston, Liberal member, died in office and the C.C.F. won a by-election. In 1945, following Coalition, W. J. Johnson, a Conservative, was nominated and elected. Mr. Johnson died last week, and deposing of Mr. Beard would leave Liberals free to demand a Liberal-Coalitionist in the Revelstoke riding.

Possibility of Reeve Thomas as a compromise candidate was seen last night. He is standing as a Coalitionist, without Liberal or Conservative strings.

In announcing his candidature, Reeve Thomas said:

LIBERTIES THREATENED

"After serious consideration and many requests I have consented to allow my name to go before the convention. I feel our liberties are being threatened by certain elements in Canada, and I pledge myself to the principles of the Coalition Government."

A native of Nanaimo, Reeve Thomas has resided in the district for more than 30 years. He is an insurance broker.

Further P.C. woes were shown at the closed meeting in Vancouver of the executive when it agreed to call a new nominating convention "for the purpose of naming a Progressive Conservative candidate for Vancouver Centre." An earlier nominating convention named Ernest G. Sherwood. Some opposition to the move was voiced by party factions, it was reported.

British Nab Russians On River

BERLIN, April 23 (AP).—The British caught the Russians trying to slip canal boat traffic through the counter-blockade of Berlin today.

A German tugboat operator, shanghaied by the Russians and pressed into the blockade-running traffic, set the trap.

Erich Froehlich of the British sector took his tugboat down the river Spree to the Soviet sector April 4. He was detained.

On April 19 he was ordered to tow three Soviet barges through British sector waters to Potsdam, in the Soviet sector.

Froehlich engineered a breakdown of his engine and had to be towed back from Potsdam. In the British sector he cast off from the Russian-manned tug and shouted for British police.

A military officer ordered a Russian soldier aboard the towing tug to leave. The soldier threatened the officer and British police disarmed him.

Woman Dies During Fire At Ladysmith

LADYSMITH, April 23.—A heart attack caused by shock when her home caught fire proved fatal to Mrs. Margaret E. James, 68, of Ladysmith, shortly after 11 a.m. today.

Neighborhood boys were first to notice the fire, and rushed to notify the James family. In a state of excitement, and assisted by a visitor, Mrs. James was helped to a nearby house and there collapsed. She did not rally. Her first thought on hearing of the fire was for her pet canary, which she carried with her in its cage.

Dr. H. Cantor attended.

Meanwhile the Ladysmith fire department responded to the alarm, and fought the blaze in a 50-mile-per-hour gale. The fire, thought to be the result of a spark blown under the shingles, was confined to the roof although here was considerable water damage to the interior.

Mrs. James is survived by her husband; four sons: Lawrence, at home; John, Ladysmith; Stanley, Chemainus; Clifford, Cowichan, and one daughter, Mrs. Gordon Craig, Nanaimo.

Soviet Aid to China Reds Bared in Seized Papers

LAKE SUCCESS, April 23 (AP).—Britain's Intelligence Service was reported today to have received copies of captured orders and papers showing the Soviet Union is aiding the Chinese Communists.

A British source who would not permit identification said these papers showed clear co-ordination between the Moscow Government and the Chinese Communists. He gave no details.

BASIS FOR COMPLAINT

The Chinese delegation to the United Nations heard these reports with interest. There was no official word of any course of action, but some U.N. sources said if the documents were backed with sufficient evidence they could be the basis for a complaint by the Chinese Nationalist Government against Soviet Russia in the U.N. Security Council.

The Chinese delegation held an extraordinary caucus today at which the reports were discussed. There was no sign, however, of any change in the policy of "wait and see" adopted by the delegation.

U.N. sources said China considered bringing up the Chinese situation last Autumn during the Paris assembly to charge that Russia had not fully complied with her treaty obligations. But this plan was abandoned and it has been noted since that Russia has followed a most correct course in regard to the Nationalist Government, these sources added.

On the basis of present information, U.N. observers pointed out, there is nothing that can be done about the war in China.

China has not presented a complaint. Secretary-General Trygve Lie made it clear during the past Winter that he plans not to intervene as a mediator. No other member of the U.N. has shown any sign of bringing up the Chinese situation.

Western delegates say privately, however, the incidents involving British war vessels on the Yangtze River undoubtedly will cause Britain and the United States to re-examine their whole policy toward China.

Unit to Guard Atomic Plants

SEATTLE, April 23 (AP).—A "substantial" army force is due to move in on the Hanford atomic project for security duty.

Congressman Henry Jackson disclosed the plan here today. Gen. Mark W. Clark, Sixth Army Commander, confirmed it but declined to elaborate on the size of the force.

Jackson, a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, said the military unit will be "in force large enough to provide protection for the immediate area."

He said the step is not because of "any increased tension in the international situation."

BULLETINS

Search Fails

PORTLAND, April 23 (AP)—A second day's search for a B-26 bomber missing with three men aboard yielded nothing today but false clues.

The bomber vanished Thursday shortly before noon, after radioing it was three minutes flying time south of the Portland airport.

No Decision

LONDON, April 23 (AP).—British authorities have arranged to evacuate about 4,000 Britons from Shanghai but there has been no decision to carry out the plan, a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

Robs Gown Shop

PORTLAND, April 23 (AP).—A gunman herded 13 persons to a rear room of a gown shop in midtown tonight, ordered them to lie face down on the floor and then emptied the cashier's till of about $4,500 and escaped.

Reds Take Nanking Shanghai Menaced

Communists Occupy Capital; Sweep Towards Second Centre

SHANGHAI, Sunday, April 24 (AP).—Chinese Communist troops today triumphantly occupied Nanking, reports filtering in from that Nationalist capital said.

Red troops in a victorious sweep across the Yangtze also were said to be nearing Shanghai, a second great centre of Nationalist power.

The reports from Nanking said the occupation was orderly.

All telephone communications were out to Nanking, torn by looters and undefended.

The military situation was obscure as the Reds in great force swept southward from the Yangtze.

TO DEATH

Gen. Chen Ta-chin, commander of the Shanghai garrison, reiterated that this greatest city in all Asia would be defended to the death.

Garrison soldiers worked on the flat lands before Shanghai building tank traps and pill boxes. But the defence zone seemed to be poorly organized. It was not very heavily manned.

The rush of Government and army officials from Nanking to Shanghai continued during the morning.

Premier Ho Ying-chin, who also is Defence Minister, is here. But what officers newsmen were able to contact seemed to know nothing about the general situation.

U.S. Consul-General John Cabot warned Americans they should leave Shanghai as fast as they can.

There were reports in circulation here that Chiang Kai-shek had conferred here with Premier Ho. They were said to have discussed a defence for South China.

Acting President Li Tsung-jen, who took over when Chiang "retired," arrived in Canton. That South China metropolis apparently will be the next capital.

It was difficult to tell in Shanghai where the great Red offensive is going.

Whether Shanghai is an early target or not, the Communists are sure to slash south and occupy Hangchow, about 100 miles southwest of Shanghai. Hangchow not only is a port but controls the railway leading from Shanghai into South China.

The Sin Wan Pao, largest Chinese newspaper in Shanghai, predicted the battle for Shanghai would start at Soochow, about 50 miles west of Shanghai.

The same newspaper said Red vanguards had reached Wusih, 100 miles northwest of Shanghai.

May Use Force to Free Amethyst Implies Consul

SHANGHAI, April 23 (AP).—The British consul-general tonight strongly implied that force would be used if necessary to rescue the sloop Amethyst and its 60 remaining personnel from a Chinese Communist trap in the Yangtze River.

The Communist radio in Peiping, meanwhile, charged that the four British ships shot up by the Reds since Wednesday were fired upon because they joined the Nationalists in the war.

A British Foreign Office spokesman in London indignantly denied this, stating the Amethyst and the others which vainly tried to rescue her "only fired in self-defence and did not fire until fired upon."

This spokesman also said one of the British ships, the 10,000-ton cruiser 'London, was fired on by Nationalists as well as Communist artillery.

The death toll aboard the four British ships was officially put today at 43, instead of the previous 44. More than 80 British seamen were wounded, some of them critically. The Communists said they themselves suffered 252 casualties and damage to their positions.

The 1,375-ton Amethyst, first fired upon Wednesday morning as she sought to reach Nanking to supply and protect British Embassy personnel, was still pinned in the river about 50 miles east of Nanking.

The Communists now hold both banks and have fired on the little vessel every time she moves in either direction.

British Consul-General R. W. Urquhart, in a St. George's Day radio address, declared:

"Officers and men on board the Amethyst are in good heart, but naturally exhausted. They are in as safe a position as can be found for them.

"Naturally every possible means of rescuing them either by an operation or a cease-fire order will be taken."

He did not explain, but an "operation" could only mean force under the circumstances.

(It was not clear whether he referred only to the men or to the ship as well. However, the Amethyst was able to send all her wounded to Shanghai by train Friday, so presumably the men still aboard remained voluntarily.

(To let the ship fall into Communist possession or even to lose it by scuttling would entail a tremendous loss of face and is unlikely to be done.)

Man Held As Agent Of Russia

WINNIPEG, April 23 (CP). — The story of a Russian army officer, suspected of being a Soviet agent in Canada, is unfolding tonight. The man — 36-year-old Dimitry Leschenko — is believed to have gained illegal entry into this country by posing as an Estonian displaced person.

The suspect was arrested in Calgary Tuesday on a charge of misrepresentation in connection with the Immigration Act. He is being held in custody at Winnipeg.

WORKED IN CALGARY

Previous to his arrest, the man was working in a Calgary flour mill. Details surrounding the case were not made known until today.

Federal Justice Minister Garson has quoted the man as saying he was serving as a Russian agent in the British zone of Germany prior to his arrival in Canada in May, last year.

Leschenko, said to be the son of a Russian lawyer, was reported to have become known in Calgary's Ukrainian community as a man who spoke out strongly against the Communists.

Leftists Refused Passports by U.S.

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—The State Department has turned thumbs down on a trip to the United States by Konni Zilliacus, British Left Wing member of Parliament, and Pierre Cot, member of the French General Assembly, informed officials reported today.

The two asked passport visas to accompany Henry A. Wallace on a tour of the country in opposition to the North Atlantic Pact.

Visas have been approved for three other foreign nationals invited by Wallace to join the tour. They are H. Lester Hutchinson, Labor member of the British Parliament; Michele Gius, Socialist member of the Italian Senate, and Mrs. Mimi Sverdrup Lunden of Norway.

Asserts Polish Embassy In U.S. Nest for Spies

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—House Un-American Activities Committee produced tonight documentary evidence and testimony under oath that the Polish Embassy here has been a nest for spies.

Twenty-seven documents and the testimony were supplied by Gen. Izyador Rudolf Modelski, a former embassy official whose appointment back-fired on Poland's Communist regime.

The testimony points to at least two espionage networks operating out of the embassy, one supposedly specializing in atomic secrets, the other branching into Canada and Mexico.

Modelski's papers and what he said are included in an official committee report.

NO INDICATION

It indicates that the Poles were after everything from humdrum economic figures to military supersecrets. His story told of a Russian spy master pulling the strings. There is no measure of how successful they were.

Modelski said he collected the documents dealing with spying while he was military attache at the Washington Embassy from May, 1946, to last August.

The general related he walked out with the documents when he broke officially with the Red-dominated Government in Warsaw.

Some of Modelski's papers were sent in code. Some were stamped "Top secret." One said it should be destroyed after it was read.

One top secret document was a set of detailed instructions given Modelski in March, 1946, he said, before he came to this country. He said they dealt with "what fields are to be covered, and which way the spy network must be set up."

Three Men Die As Wind Hits In Washington

SEATTLE, April 23 (CP).—Heavy winds, blowing in gusts up to 45 miles an hour, struck Washington State Saturday, causing three deaths and minor power failures.

The dead:

A man identified as Kurt Braum, 63, of Olalla, drowned in Crescent Lake north of Gig Harbor when the wind swamped the small rubber life raft from which he was fishing.

George F. Trott, 63, retired farmer, died of a heart attack from what a physician said was excitement caused when the wind blew down his barn near Auburn.

Roman Hunter, 60, civilian fireman, drowned in Moses Lake when choppy waves provoked by the wind tossed him out of his outboard motorboat.

The wind was generally strong in both Eastern and Western Washington.

"Peace" Parley Cheers News Of Red Gains

PARIS, April 23 (AP).—The loudest cheers of the four-day-old World Peace Congress were given today at the announcement of a Communist war victory in China.

Two minutes of wild cheering greeted the statement of the day's chairman, J. G. Crowther, a British historian, that "we have just learned that the democratic Chinese forces have entirely liberated Nanking."

The delegates sat in stunned silence earlier when one speaker criticized "proletarian bureaucrats" and mixed boos and catcalls when an American, O. John Rogge, said Russia lacked political freedom.

They got their first shock when Harvey Moore, a British lawyer, told them that "proletarian bureaucrats as well as bourgeois bureaucrats will have to learn that people want freedom of the individual, freedom of speech, freedom of elections and freedom to change their Government if they want to."

When the delegates sat silent, Moore demanded, "where are your cheers?"

He got a few then.

The second shocker for the delegates was a declaration by Rogge, former United States assistant attorney-general, that Russia and the United States were "equally responible" for the cold war.

Boos and hisses interrupted his speech when he said there was lack of equality for racial minorities in America and "likewise, there is not sufficient freedom for political minorities in the Soviet Union."

To Fly Aid To Eskimos

WINNIPEG, April 23 (CP). — An R.C.A.F. aircraft will leave here tomorrow for Chesterfield Inlet, 1,000 miles north, carrying a group of medical personnel who will examine the Eskimos stricken with poliomyelitis several months ago.

Heading the group will be Dr. W. J. Woods of the Indian Affairs Department, who headed the group which flew to the inlet March 1, following report of the outbreak. Dr. Wood and his party returned to Winnipeg six days later, taking with them 13 of the most seriously-stricken Eskimos.

Two of the Eskimo children brought to Winnipeg will be returned to their Chesterfield Inlet homes on tomorrow's plane, Dr. Wood said.

Miss Constance Beatty of Toronto, a physiotherapist, and Miss A. McCarthy, an Indian Affairs Department nurse, also will be aboard.

Canadian Embassy Staff At Nanking Still "Safe"

Ottawa, April 23 (CP).—Canadian Embassy officers in the undefended Chinese capital of Nanking may be "in danger" for the next two or three days, a Government spokesman said today, but so far, the staff was reported "safe."

No arrangements have been made to withdraw the staff in face of the Communist onslaught. They likely will remain until order is restored by the Communists, expected to have the city in their hands by early Sunday.

"We expected danger," said the spokesman, "and normal precautions were taken."

These included herding Canadian Embassy officers together with other foreign representatives in Nanking behind a compound, protected by Chinese guards and a high wall against possible looters during the period of changeover from Nationalist to Communist control.

The officers, whose wives and dependents had already been evacuated some weeks ago, will remain in the wall-protected compound until order is restored.

Meanwhile, the Federal Government was keeping in continual communication with Ambassador Davis.

Report Czechs Planned Coup, Called It Off

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—A spokesman for the Council of Free Czecho-Slovakia said today underground forces in Czecho-Slovakia called off an attempt to overthrow the Communist Government some time ago.

This former Czech official, who declined use of his name, said preparations had been made for such an attempt but that it was called off because "the situation would not justify anything of that kind—it would have been a sacrifice."

The chances of success were "absolutely against" those plotting the overthrow of the present Government, he said. The date which had been set by the underground forces involved "was quite close" when the decision to call off the project was made, he told a reporter.

The spokesman declined to say what date had been set or to give other details, because, he said, it might endanger those involved.

He added that "there is a very good chance for the future."

EDINBURGH (CP).—George Middleton, 51, secretary of Glasgow Trades Council, who resigned from the Communist Party last year, has been appointed general secretary of the Scottish Trades Union Congress.

Will Remove Stone Cupola Atop Capitol

OLYMPIA, April 23 (AP).—Workmen will start next week on the six-week job of removing the 100-ton cupola atop the State Capitol dome. The cupola was loosened by last week's earthquake and the Capitol evacuated — just in case the big adornment should crash through the building.

Scientists from the University of Washington and officials from California, meanwhile, were studying the quake's scars. Five Californians were looking into school and highway damage. The university men were seeking data on the Olympic Mountain fault blamed for several quakes.

General Ma Halts Nanking Looting, Arranges Welcome for Communists

Communications with Nanking ceased this morning more than two hours before the scheduled entry of the Communists into the Chinese capital. Following is a roundup story of the situation filed by Associated Press Correspondent Seymour Topping from Nanking shortly before communications were cut.

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

NANKING, April 24 (Sunday) — The vanguard of Communist troops reached the open gates of this loot-torn, fire-lit Chinese capital last night and prepared for a triumphant entry this morning.

The 100,000 Government troops in and around Nanking had fled southward Saturday morning, pausing only to blow up the railway station and set the waterfront aflame.

Looters quickly went to work. Wild orgies of robbery and killing lasted all day Saturday.

SOME ORDER RESTORED

By nightfall an emergency "peace preservation committee" headed by Gen. Ma Chin-yuan, a former Government division commander, had restored a semblance of order and arranged by radio for the Communist entry.

Ma announced shortly before midnight Saturday that the Reds had begun crossing from the north bank of the Yangtze River at 6 p.m. to Shang Hain Ho, three miles from Nanking's west gate.

By the time of his announcement several thousand were over the big river, waiting to enter by daylight.

Ma said he did not think the Reds would enter sooner, although the gates stood open and they knew they could walk in whenever they chose.

ARRANGING WELCOME

Ma said he was arranging a formal welcome and that his committee early today was drafting slogans of greeting.

Darkness and volunteer patrols of students and citizens finally halted most of the looting.

Sporadic rifle fire still crackled in the streets, however, and the bodies of looters lay where they had been slain.

Among the homes ransacked in the traditional Chinese reaction to disaster was that of Acting President Li Tsung-Jen.

Li's family home in Hongkong announced that he had reached Canton.

Late in the night tremendous explosions and fires on the north bank of the Yangtze shook and illuminated Nanking. It was reported that Government troops had demolished fuel and ammunition supplies near Pukow, although Communists were in control of the north bank.

SPORADIC FIRING

From the distant southern suburbs near Blue Dragon Hill, some Nationalist artillery fired intermittently over the city.

Demolitions by the retreating Nationalists were spectacular but spotty.

This correspondent saw them efficiently blow up the railway station and set fires along the waterfront. Several gunboats and other vessels were scuttled or burned in harbor.

The city's two airfields, however, were in usable condition. The Nationalist air force dumps of gasoline and bombs there were undisturbed.

ONE PLANE LEFT

At the other field, "The Ming Tomb" field, there was only one plane—the United States military attache's ship, standing by for possible emergency use.

However, the United States and British Embassies reported none of their nationals had been molested.

Before leaving Saturday, George Yeh, acting foreign minister, again urged all foreign diplomats to move to Canton, but they all advised him they intended to stay. Only the Russian ambassador is in Canton.

The Red radio said Nationalist resistance was extremely weak everywhere.

States Murphy May Be Ousted In Union Vote

VANCOUVER, April 23 (CP).—A Vancouver newspaper today reported that ousting of Harvey Murphy from his post as regional director of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union (C.I.O.) is indicated in results of voting in union districts in British Columbia.

With only the Bralorne district and a small Vancouver local still to be heard from, three Murphy-sponsored candidates appear near defeat in the fight for positions on the five-man regional board.

The newspaper added the three leading candidates all have made it clear that they will ask the union's international office to recall Murphy.

Claire Billingsley of Trail appears to have ousted John Moffet as district president. Dave McGee of Kimberley is expected to take over the position of secretary from Ken. A Smith; and Jim Byrne of Trail, is leading D. Belanger for board membership.

Looters Strip Police Station

NANKING, April 23 (AP). — Some of the looting in Nanking today was positively ludicrous.

A boy about seven years old marched up and down in front of the stripped police headquarters, brandishing a bayonet and sporting a policeman's white pith helmet.

Ten Daily Flights Scheduled City, Vanvouver Air Service

Commencing May 1 Trans-Canada Air Lines will operate ten flights daily out of Victoria to Vancouver. A similar number of flights will leave Vancouver for this city.

Service to Seattle will also be boosted. Two flights will be made daily from Patricia Bay to Puget Sound city.

R. L. Williams, district traffic and sales manager for T.C.A. here, in making this announcement yesterday, also noted that inauguration of a third trans-continental flight, to start soon, would bring direct benefits to this city.

The additional trans-continental flight, he said, would fly directly from Vancouver to Edmonton and on to Toronto via Saskatoon and Winnipeg. It will bring the Prairie centres to within a few hours of Victoria and allow extra space for busy travellers. Local air cargo shippers will also benefit.

In line with the new schedule of flights between Patricia Bay and Vancouver, planes will leave the local airport for Vancouver daily at 6:45 a.m., 9:45 a.m., 10:45 a.m., 11:45 a.m., 1:30 p.m., 4:15 p.m., 5:45 p.m., 6:15 p.m., 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Arrivals in Vancouver, in all cases, is half an hour later.

Flights to Seattle will leave here daily at 8:15 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. The trip to Seattle takes 50 minutes.

Mr. Williams also pointed out that passengers arriving at Vancouver from Eastern points will be able to make almost direct connections with planes leaving Vancouver for Victoria.

Three Injured, Damage to Cars Heavy In Series of Saturday Night Crashes

Victoria and district police officers handled their usual number of Saturday night traffic accidents which saw three persons slightly injured, car damage high, and one car impounded.

Injured were:

Mrs. Irene Nieman, 334 Hillside Avenue, face cuts.

Norman J. Basso, 408 Hillside Avenue, face cuts.

Reginald Wood, 1047 Wollaston Street, face cuts and shock.

Esquimalt police said Basso was driving east on the 800 Block, Esquimalt Road, when the car left the road, jumped the sidewalk, and clipped off a telephone pole.

The car was extensively damaged and was impounded, police said.

City police reported that considerable damage was caused when a car driven by Wood struck a steel girder on the Johnson Street Bridge at 7:10 p.m.

Wood told police he struck the pole in avoiding children playing on the bridge. His car was badly damaged.

At 8:40 p.m. a motorcycle going south on Government Street, operated by Robert Christopher, 664 Dallas Road, struck a parked car on the west side of Government, north of Dallas Road.

Police reported the car was owned by Phillip Salsbury, 714 Belmont Building. Damage was slight.

FAILS TO STOP

The next accident came ten minutes later when a car struck a vehicle owned by Mrs. Henrietta Kirkpatrick, 218 Cross Street, and failed to stop. This occurred on Begbie Street, between Stanley and Elwood Avenues.

The last accident reported Saturday took place at the intersection of Johnson and Broad Streets according to city police.

They said a car driven east on Johnson by Mrs. A. W. Bentley, 306 Edward Street, was in collision with a car driven south on Broad by Cleve Stenmark, 1024 Pendergast Street. Damage was slight.

Just Escapes Death by Gas

An elderly Victoria woman narrowly escaped death at 4:25 p.m. yesterday when she fainted while making coffee on a gas stove at 824 Courtney Street.

Mrs. E. O. Caroline de Robeck, about 80, was found unconscious by Mrs. E. Taylor, same address, who entered the room on detecting gas fumes.

City police took Mrs. de Robeck to St. Joseph's Hospital where her condition is reported as "good."

Eagles' Klondike Night Draws 3,000 To Promote May 24 Celebrations

No doubt about it, C. P. Smith, 60 Vicky Road, really got himself a buy last night at the Eagles Klondike Night at Bay Street Armoury, when he became the new owner of a 1930 car for $60.

The car was donated to the Eagles to be sold to the highest bidder, and the proceeds turned over to the Greater Victoria May 24 Celebrations Committee.

Granted the car was definitely not of the latest vintage and was not considered in the high-powered class, but for $60 a car is a car.

Meanwhile, officials estimated the crowd at the show to be approximately 3,000 people.

D. Essler, chairman of the Klondike Night, said: "The public has certainly come forward to support us and seems to be getting into the spirit of the May 24 Celebrations. If the public continues to give the support it has tonight, we will have one of the best celebrations Victoria has ever seen."

The Eagles Comic Clown Band was one of the feature attractions in the show.

"There is no professional talent in the band, we just play as a hobby," said Bandmaster Alex Donald.

Ald. C. P. Banfield, chairman of the May 24 Celebrations, said: "We are receiving co-operation from the Eagles and other organizations which I believe will make May 24 an outstanding event in the history of Victoria."

The show was officially opened with a parade of the Eagles Clown Band, the Eaglettes Drill Team and the Ladies' Auxiliary through the city to the Bay Street Armoury.

Music, games, novelties and door prizes were but a few of the many highlights and features of the evening.

PATIENTS ENTERTAINED

were entertained recently by a concert party from Victoria Aerie No. 12 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Under Emcee Gene McLeod the artists were Jack Drysdale, Ted Drysdale, Orval Speed, Ed Moore, Frank Moore, Gus Crocket, Stan Bowley, Glen Priestley and Al Meugans.

Rangers Balk at Scheme For Sooke Lake Logging

Strong objection to proposed scientific logging of the Sooke Lake watershed property has been registered in a prepared statement by the South Vancouver Island Rangers.

Calling the area "the last large stand of virgin timber under public control on the southern part of the Island," the Rangers list a number of objections to the civic government's proposed logging project.

The safety of Victoria's water supply would be endangered by such logging the statement claims; and the future possibility of a picturesque loop highway from Shawnigan Lake to Milnes Landing would also be destroyed, it stated.

ASK CONSERVATION

The Rangers "earnestly ask" for conservation of one of the few remaining natural park lands not too distant from Victoria.

Investigations to support their stand against the proposed logging operation are presented by the natural resources conservation committee of the Rangers:

"Our organization is largely composed of Rangers, who, during the war years, patrolled and mapped the watersheds of the Sooke and Goldstream Lakes. Many of our Rangers knew every foot of the Goldstream watershed property before it was logged off.

"These men know what has happened as a result of that devastation."

But the grim picture is kept from the public, the committee claims, by the "authorities," who keep the Goldstream to Sooke road closed on the pretext that it runs through watershed property and should not be used.

"Actually it is a public highway (such as it is) which all citizens are entitled to use," the report states.

With the population of Greater Victoria on the increase, every consideration should be given to the protection of the Sooke Lake watershed to ensure a maximum supply of water, the Rangers warn in their statement.

Logging, no matter how scientific, destroys many immature trees, the report adds, scouting the idea that the area needs logging off because it is "over mature."

The few dollars obtained from so called scientific logging may help the city of Victoria today—but will cost its citizens thousands of dollars in the future, the report states.

The Rangers have a counter proposal to utilize the resources of the Sooke watershed. It should be utilized as the setting of a scenic drive, they believe.

A road along Sooke Lake to Milnes Landing would not rise above 700 feet, they state, and would be of a scenic nature to rival the Malahat.

The Rangers also bring in expert opinion outside their own organization to bolster the case against logging operations.

A chief forester of a large logging company has declared only 30 per cent of the area practical for logging, they claim.

Development of the area on a sustained yield basis is therefore impossible, they point out.

Another timber authority who has been logging close to the Sooke watershed for several years is quoted as saying that the only way to log the Sooke Lake stand is by helicopter.

Instead of logging, the Rangers recommend reforestation of the Kapoor and Goldstream scenes. This would provide good future stands, they maintain.

The statement closes with an appeal that we conserve certain areas of our natural resources so that future generations will be able to appreciate the foresight of today.

"This beautiful country," it concludes, "is a great asset—if conserved for park land."

The Fine Art of the Apothecary Has Not Been Lost

THE OLD APOTHECARY of other years was a mysterious and romantic figure. Under his magic influence, roots, herbs, and minerals were turned into pills, extracts, and plasters. The doctor's prescriptions were filled, the patient's health and comfort restored. Although much of the mystery with which he was surrounded has vanished, the fine art of the apothecary has not been lost. A visit to our prescription pharmacy will convince the most skeptical that his function is an important adjunct to modern medical practice. When you find it necessary to consult a physician, bring your prescriptions to us to be filled.

The Mountains Were Paid for Long Ago

AFTER many years of unjust and nationally unwarranted discrimination, the mountain differential on certain classes of rail freights traversing the Rockies will be removed on July 1 by order of the Federal Transport Board. In a majority judgment handed down yesterday, the Commissioners held two to one in favor of the contention of the British Columbia Government that the differential was discriminatory and had no place in the rail freight structure of Canada. Sincere congratulations are due to Attorney-General Wismer, who carried British Columbia's case with determination and vigor. From a national standpoint the right stand is now being taken, and no longer will one section of the country be asked to pay a premium because of the Rocky Mountains.

What British Columbia importers and shippers have paid out in mountain tolls on freights in the past is beyond computation. For decades the bias has been there, and under it charges as high as $3,500,000 additional a year were being assessed against British Columbia businessmen who wished to move goods through the Rockies. Now this drain will stop, and we will be a nation with a truer national policy respecting the movement and transfer of goods. The decision of the Federal Transport Board will be hailed as timely and just by those who have given objective consideration to the matter. There never was any valid reason for the mountain differential in a land such as Canada. Now it is to be removed. British Columbia will be on a par with the other provinces.

Jail Is No Substitute for Hospital Treatment

TO their eternal credit, often the courts of this land are closer to the real spirit of justice than the hard and fast letter of the law as it is written. A Vancouver police magistrate who declined to increase the sentence of a confessed female drug addict, and Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan who upheld that ruling in the face of an appeal by the prosecution, have highlighted one of the great anomalies under the Criminal Code dealing with narcotics. It is that jail is prescribed for the victims of this black traffic, when what they need obviously is a long term of hospital care.

Few throughout the structure of society would have one good word to say for the narcotic peddler or anyone in the grisly ring that profits by such mental, moral and spiritual destruction of fellow human beings. Let the illegal drug vendor receive the limit of punishment under the law every time and without exception. Lashes should be added to drive the lesson home. With their unfortunate victims, however, the case is entirely different. These people, men and women, are in urgent need of help, not of punishment. They are desperately sick. It is a travesty on justice itself to commit them to jail as common felons; and yet under the Code as it stands there is often no alternative.

Like the alcoholic, the drug addict both can and should be helped; can be weaned away from a grim terror which profits no decent member of human society. In civil life apart from the courts cures are being effected steadily. It is high time that the law itself took cognizance of what can be done and is being done almost daily in medical practice. A jail cell for a victim of drug addiction is as archaic as the thumbscrew and the rack, and just about as efficacious towards any possible cure. All honor to the courts for challenging the Code on this point.

Ugly Overhead Wires Could Be Eliminated

BECAUSE over a period of half a century city dwellers have become accustomed to the ugly sight of forests of poles carrying a web of cables and wires overhead, the misconception seems to have taken root in most Canadian communities that they must be endured indefinitely. With the sole exception of Montreal, not one city in Canada has a definite plan for the gradual elimination of these unsightly reticulation systems. This is in marked contrast to most European and United States cities, which long ago began taking steps to put the wires out of sight.

Nor is the desirability of thought being given to the matter in this country limited to aesthetic considerations. It has long been recognized that curbside poles are an increasing traffic hazard and that overhead wires are a menace in storms and aggravate the dangers faced by firemen.

Probably the high cost of underground services in the first instance and of burying existing systems is the principal deterring factor with civic administrations. This is short-sighted, however, and it ignores the fact that the longer a positive approach to the problem is put off the greater will be the ultimate cost.

According to Civic Administration, a new Canadian magazine which has given prominence in its first issue to this question, the change in Montreal was financed by a long-term city loan. Utility companies lease space for their cables in the city-built underground ducts, and pay a rental sufficient to cover carrying charges on the capital cost and the expense of maintenance. This appears to be an initial solution to the problem of finance, and one worthy of study by town planners in Greater Victoria, where exceptional natural beauty is marred to a regrettable degree.

Thinking Aloud

". . . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT doesn't do to sneer at hypnotists, I suppose. Svengalis have been at their disconcerting trade ever since Mesmer demonstrated that a persuasive eye and mysteriously waving hands can put some folk to sleep.

Not to dream, but perchance to waken up with a fixation they don't know is there.

You remember Trilby, poor lass, and what happened to her. She had a nice time while the going was good, of course, but the spell, alas, became unstuck when her mentor slumped in the stage box.

It's the bugs put in the sleeper's brain that counts—if they stay put.

I can remember as a small boy gaping open-mouthed as some music-hall hypnotist made a laughing-stock out of the innocents who stepped up from the audience as willing guinea-pigs. I shrank back in my seat lest by some sinister mischance I'd be transported to the stage as the next victim.

After that as I grew older and the Doubting-Thomas half of me grew stronger I dismissed these stage Svengalis from my mind as imposters.

Until, that is, about two years ago when a young colleague aped Mesmer with uncanny success and to the alarm of a group of friends gathered in a small Prospect Lake cottage. They shrank back even farther than I had once done as a boy.

NOT A SVENGALI

The office hypnotist wasn't exactly a Svengali. He merely told his sleeping subject to make a certain request when he woke up—which, to the astonishment of the onlookers, the subject did, all unaware of the suggestion planted in his subconscious mind.

I take it, nevertheless, that even Mesmer had his limits. At least, one of his followers apparently has.

I'm thinking of that naive Leicestershire hypnotist who tried to convince the players of the Hinckley Athletic soccer team—hypnotically—that they would win their next game. He proved to be no Mandrake. Either that or his gestures were counter-clockwise.

Now I've known of some queer things done to spur athletes, human and animal. Race horses, not of a certainty amenable to the spoken word, have been mesmerized—or galvanized—by drugs; I can remember filling my pockets with cube sugar to stimulate my own soccer teammates at half-time, although no apparent miracles resulted; I've watched other teams drink avidly from mysterious concoctions labeled "tea"; all this to bring about the kind of victory that was promised the Hinckley Athletics.

A NEW WRINKLE

Winning by hypnotism, however—that's a new wrinkle, albeit it was flattened into disrepute in no time at all.

Hypnotists, I am forced to conclude, should stick to their lasts—on the stage or at lakeside cottages. Certainly it was tempting whatever fates they conjure up to tackle a multiple assignment, especially when there was an opposing team to reckon with.

Hinckley didn't win, as you may have gathered—the spell somehow came unstuck, even though the hypnotist was on the sidelines, no doubt muttering incantations and gesticulating like a madman. Presumably the victors didn't glance his way.

I'm left wondering, however, what would have happened had this sportive mesmerist told Hinckley's opponents they would lose. Or, even more intriguing, if he had told them they'd win, also.

If the latter, where would stand the result? If the former, what would have been the scoresheet?

IT'S A PITY

It's rather a pity the Hinckley hypnotist has been discredited, though. Think what a boon he would have set in motion if by the simple process of a Mesmeric eye and Magdrakian hands a group of men could subconsciously be endowed with the virtue of success. What fun a modern Mesmer would have deciding on whom to confer victory at the polls in June! What suppliants there would be queuing up for his favors!

If he were fashionable, of course, Dr. Gallup would have to retire, although maybe this prognosticator should in any case, seeing that on a notable recent occasion his attempts at mass suggestion also failed miserably.

It's the bugs put in the sleepers' brains that count—if they stay put.

The only fixation the Hinckley Athletics are likely to be left with, I'm afraid, is that they can't win, consciously or unconsciously. They had won only one game since January before they called in the hypnotist. The would-be Svengali must have forgotten that soccer is played with two teams.

Russia's Miscalculations

By W. N. EWER

LONDON.—It is pure coincidence that the General Assembly of the United Nations should have met in Flushing Meadows the day after the Atlantic Pact was signed in Washington. An April sitting of the Assembly was only necessary because the Autumn session in Paris failed to complete its work. But the coincidence is in a way, symbolic. The Assembly meets out of season because of the failure of U.N.O. The Atlantic Pact is signed for precisely the same reason.

When the charter was signed in San Francisco, it was assumed that the United Nations would be an instrument of collective security for the whole world. The charter, unlike the League Covenant, was to have "teeth in it." The Security Council, in the event of an aggression, would be able at once to order immediate action. It would be able at once to call upon the armed forces which the member states were to place at its disposal.

On paper that should have sufficed not merely to deal effectively with any would-be aggressor, but to deter him from any thought of aggression. Overwhelming force would be at the service of the world community against any possible breaker of the peace.

There were, it is true, subsidiary articles in the charter. Article 51 recognized the right of individual or collective self-defence. But—as its wording makes clear—it was really intended simply to legalize resistance during the short period which might elapse (in the case of a sudden, surprise attack) before the Security Council and its military resources could come into action.

Articles 52 and 53 provided for "regional agreements." But again it is plain that they were, if made, to be entirely subsidiary. Such existing treaties as the Anglo-Soviet Treaty or the Anglo-Turkish Treaty would continue. But they would be subordinated to the greater concept of the United Nations.

* * * * *

So, step by step, quite deliberately, the United Nations, as conceived in 1945, has been destroyed. To what end? To anybody familiar with Communist wishful thinking the answer is clear. There would be "two camps." On one hand the solid "monolithic" Soviet "camp," a closely organized, firmly disciplined phalanx. On the other hand the rest of the world, riddled by "the contradictions of capitalism," split by inevitable quarrels, by "class-struggles inside each country," by "imperialist rivalries" between countries. And in such circumstances the outcome of the conflict would be certain.

This thesis in fact was based on two axioms: That the Soviet camp would remain united; that the other "camp" would remain divided.

What the Soviet leaders—for all their training in Hegelian dialectic—did not foresee was that this thesis would—to use jargon—produce its antithesis. They did not foresee that their own action would drive the West (and, indeed, the whole non-Soviet world) towards new unity in the face of a new threat. The Atlantic Pact is not merely a defensive group of twelve nations. It and the British Commonwealth are two focuses of the new concept of collective security for the whole free world.

Nor, for all their knowledge of Marx, did the Soviet leaders remember that even their own system might "carry within itself seeds of its own decay." They did not foresee a couple of years ago that they would soon be devoting a lot of energy and anger to dealing with cracks (small, perhaps, but symptomatic) in Stalin's monolithic empire.

* * * * *

Today two camps exist, but they are not the two camps which Soviet theorising foresaw. The one which should have been hopelessly unstable and divided is becoming more stable and united. The one which should have been growing in strength and unity is weaker and more divided.

Will the Soviet leaders realize that once again their calculations have been incorrect and—of course without admitting error—adjust their policy to this new realization? It is possible. They have done so more than once in the past. Or will they still cling to the dangerous illusions of their dogma? They have done that, too, on occasion. This year should give the answer.

Observation Car: By G. B.

MEMBERS of the Canadian Restaurant Association have been advised not to use the word "extra" on a bill of fare, because it is likely to upset customers. By making the word "additional," the association believes diners may be smoothed into paying extra without undue suffering. Speaking of restaurant proprietors reminds me of the old stand-by in which a man asked a cashier: "Is the proprietor in?" The girl replied: "No, he has gone out to eat." . . . Most girls are capable of taking care of themselves in the world, but many are absolutely lost in a kitchen . . . Those who bear the brunt of heavy Dominion Government taxes scoff at the term cyclical budgeting. They believe it should be "cynical" budgeting . . . The price of furnace oil has been cut to 16 cents per gallon, and stove oil, 19 cents per gallon at Toronto. Anthracite coal has been reduced to $20.75 per ton; buckwheat coal, $14.60 per ton, and rice coal, $13.60 per ton. There does not appear to be any prospect of a reduction in the prices of soft coal mined on Vancouver Island . . . Edward Phelps wrote: "The man who does not make mistakes does not usually make anything" . . . "Hey, Dad, have you got any ideas about what to wear at a masquerade?" a Fairfield girl asked her father. "What is this all about?" Dad inquired. "Our club is having a masquerade party next Monday, and each member has been asked to appear in some sort of an original costume," the girl explained. "Why not leave off those silly overalls for a change and simply go as a girl?" Dad countered . . . Everything is growing this Spring, including municipal taxes . . . Britons must feel like beating their gums. The Government moved to provide them with free false teeth, and then cut the meat ration.

CAR FERRY NEEDS

Sir,—As one of many Island resort operators affected I would like to direct your attention to a situation which is growing more critical each week.

During the recent Easter holiday period we lost considerable business because many prospective guests were unable to get their cars on Vancouver Island. Other guests had to come without their cars and this meant a loss both to stores and other resorts.

As of this date we are again in receipt of a letter canceling because of inability to get transportation. This letter from Dr. John G. Robertson, dated April 20 states: "Please cancel reservations made for me by Mr. Geo. Walker. We are unable to get boat reservations." Signed John G. Robertson. This reservation was for Friday night April 22. It is rumored already that July boat reservations are impossible to get . . .

Promises of boat service which has been lagging for years, in 1959 or 1955 is not good enough. The service is required now.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Sir,—I would like to correct an error near the end of an article headed "Straith Replies to Attack" which deals with the annual meeting of the Canadian Teachers' Federation being held in Vancouver, in the part which refers to the appeal of superannuated and retired teachers for higher pensions where the statement is made "The scale for the old age pension is $40 a month for single recipients and $80 for married pensioners." This is a misstatement.

Actually, the maximum scale for old age pensions is $30 a month, plus a cost-of-living bonus of $10 a month from the Province, whether the pensioner is married or single. From the point of view of the elderly person this error does not seem serious, as the wife is usually in the same age group as her husband and so can make her own application for pension so that the elderly couple will actually receive $80 a month providing they can qualify for pension. From the point of view of the blind applicant for pension it is much more serious, as a great many of the married blind men who are eligible for pension are young, with young wives who cannot apply for pension in their own right. The lack of provision in the Old Age Pension Act for an additional grant for a married man on account of his wife appears most illogical when it is realized that an applicant for pension must register his wife's income and possessions together with his own when showing need for pension. The fact that the pension is $30 a month with a provincial bonus should also be made clear. The bonus varies in different provinces, and in British Columbia the bonus of $10 a month is only paid to those pensioners who apply for their pension while resident in British Columbia. Pensioners who come to British Columbia from any other province receive only the basic pension of $30, having lost the bonus paid by the province they have left, and being refused a bonus by the British Columbia Government.

It is particularly important for the public to know the facts relating to the question of pensions at this time when so many groups, including the blind people of Canada are appealing for a fair deal from this wealthy country.

Twenty-Third Psalm

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me: Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

The "ditty bag" was first called the "ditto bag" because it contained two of each item.

Filling the Language With Jargon

(From The Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter)

SIR Alan Herbert, M.P., one of the most valiant fighters in the battle to preserve the best in English, says the language is "bulging with words like bolsters and phrases like feather beds—fat Latin words like 'reconditioning'; phrases like 'the co-ordination of our economic resources'." He goes on to say: "We are entitled to suspect the character and competence of any department, any party, any politician who stuffs the public mind with woolly, knobbly, half-baked, flabby and slushy words."

What Sir Alan is referring to is known by various names: Officialese, jargon, gobbledygook and "federal prose" are some of them. Whatever you may call it, it means a written output obscurely constructed, full of tiresome phrases, and encumbered with many ill-chosen combinations of words.

H. W. Fowler, one of the editors of the Oxford Dictionary, defines jargon as "ugly-sounding, hard to understand, made up technical terms, long words, and circumlocutions." Whatever its name, it is flourishing in many of the communications we receive daily, and perhaps we ourselves are sometimes guilty of writing it.

We are more hesitant in conversation; words of whose pronunciation we are not sure are replaced by shorter, more usual ones. We do not drone out endless sentences, full of top-heavy clauses, and obscure phrases. But we do seem to give in to temptation when we have a blank sheet of paper in front of us. The result is often a muddle of many-syllabled words which display neither thought, vocabulary nor erudition, and only serve to puzzle the reader.

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

From Files of The Daily British Colonist for April, 1862

By G. E. MORTIMORE

TWO measures of change during the past century are the attitude toward speed and the streamlining of clothes. But has the change been so drastic, after all?

The Daily British Colonist carried this item in 1862:

"Fast driving—M. Munro was yesterday arraigned in the Police Court on a charge of riding at a rate faster than a walk over one of the new bridges. He offered as an excuse that he had suffered to the tune of $600 by a swindler, and was chasing a young man whom he supposed knew where the runaway was concealed. Excuse considered good and accused discharged . . . Wm. Jackson for trotting a team of horses attached to a wagon across the long bridge, was fined 20s."

Old-fashioned? Slow? In this age of speed, similar prohibitions had to be placed on vehicles which crossed Point Ellice Bridge.

About clothes, there was this, in 1862: "On Sunday last a presentable-looking, middle-aged lady was observed on Esquimalt wharf, about the time of the departure of the Oregon, wearing a complete suit of clothes—breeches and all! After the steamer had cast off, she quietly mounted a fine horse, in true gentleman style—which means with a pedal extremity on either side of the animal—and rode off briskly toward Victoria, leaving a large and curious crowd of spectators . . .

"The lady did not seem in the least annoyed by the many quizzical glances directed toward her, and exhibited the utmost nonchalance throughout. Her appearance created quite a sensation among the usually staid and phlegmatic Esquimaiters."

Victorian prudery? We may have come some distance since then; but there still are places where policemen measure bathing suits to see if they are decent. And fashion dictators have proclaimed that women's clothes are to be feminine again. Side-saddles may be next.

"MR. CIVILIZATION"

Winston Churchill, of all men now on earth, has the greatest power to sway the public opinion of nations, the sharpest, clearest language, the gift of making complicated affairs simple. For nearly four years he has been out of office as Prime Minister of Great Britain, yet as a private citizen today he pulls more weight in every civilized country than the head of any nation.

He epitomizes the desire and determination of the civilized peoples to maintain their freedom. He is Mr. Civilization himself.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Aluminum Plant Site Surveyed

MANILA, April 23 (AP).—A Canadian aluminum company mission has completed an intensive field survey of Mindinao Island to determine the feasibility of establishing a large aluminum-processing plant in the Southern Philippines.

The mission was headed by N. Warren Waterhouse, now en route to Hongkong, Shanghai and Tokio.

Sources here said the mission was favorably impressed with the Maria Christina Falls as a site for the proposed processing of bauxtite ore from Malaya.

The company would require from 70,000 to 280,000 kilowatts of power to turn out 25,000 to 100,000 tons of aluminum per year.

Filomon Rodriguez, manager of the Government-owned National Power Corporation, said the Government was favorably disposed to the development. An outlay of 25,000,000 pesos ($12,500,000) would be required if the Government installs the power plant for the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The concern is a subsidiary of the Aluminum Union, capitalized with American and Canadian funds.

Johnson Calls Halt to Work On Giant Ship

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—Defence Secretary Johnson today ordered the navy to stop construction of its giant aircraft carrier United States.

The keel of the 65,000-ton flattop was laid at the Virginia yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding Corporation last Monday.

Johnson said in a memorandum that he acted to stop construction of the vessel after studying the views of the joint chiefs of staff and conferring with President Truman.

Neither the President nor Johnson had given any previous word as to whether the controversial carrier should be built.

The navy so far has spent about $56,000,000 on the preliminary engineering work for the carrier. The total estimated cost has risen from an original $124,000,000 to $189,000,000.

Vatican Hopes Princess To Visit Pope

VATICAN CITY, April 23 (AP).—Unofficial sources here said today a visit by Princess Margaret to Pope Pius would please the Vatican.

Two Protestant organizations in Britain yesterday asked the King to see that his daughter does not visit the Pope during her proposed tour in Italy, beginning next week.

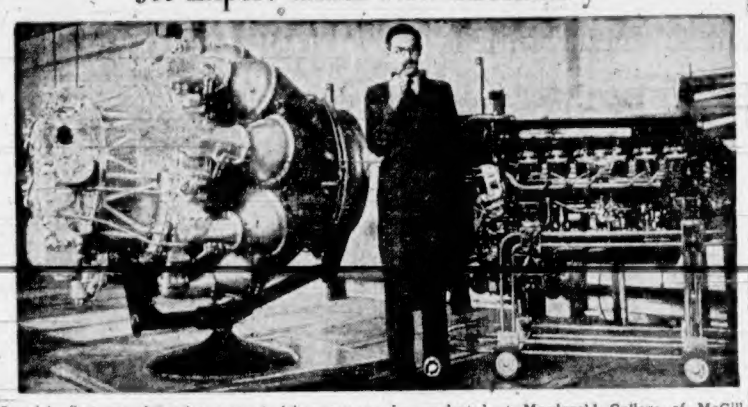
Recalling past encounters between Pontiffs and members of Britain's Royal house, the unofficial informants here said the Princess would be received, if she calls on the Pope, with all the honors due her rank.

On May 10, 1923, King George V and Queen Mary were received by Pope Pius XI.

BERLINERS WOOED

BERLIN, April 23 (AP).—The Russians today began wooing Berliners with caviar and Pilsen beer. They put these luxuries on sale in the ration free stores of East Berlin and invited all Germans, including the blockaded West Berliners, to come and buy.

Jet Expert Heads New Laboratory



Canada's first gas dynamics research laboratory, to be conducted at Macdonald College of McGill University will be headed by Prof. Donald Mordell, formerly of Rolls Royce and presently Dominion's top authority on gas turbines. At left is Rolls Royce "Nene" engine on which professor worked at Derby. Prof. Mordell is Canada's top authority on gas turbines and jet propulsion.

No Atomic Attack On Russia Planned

OTTAWA, April 23 (CP).—Defence Minister Claxton today flatly denied a charge that preparations for atomic attack on Russia are being made in Canada's Northland.

"There is nothing in it," he said.

Mr. Claxton was commenting on a Paris dispatch which attributed the statement to James G. Endicott, Canadian delegate to the Communist-supported World Peace Congress there.

The minister declined to comment further, on the ground it would only lend importance to an "unfounded" statement.

Two U.S. Warships Set for China Post

PEARL HARBOR, April 23 (AP).—The U.S. heavy cruiser St. Paul and light cruiser Manchester will sail from Pearl Harbor for China waters April 30, Pacific fleet headquarters reported today.

They will carry a complement of 700 Marines, members of the Seventh Battalion, to relieve the Third Marines, last reported based afloat in the Whangpoo River at Shanghai.

The navy said the cruisers would relieve the light cruisers Pasadena and Springfield, now at "Western Pacific stations."

The relief at this time, at the climax of the Chinese civil war, will place two additional large warships at disposal of the U.S. Western Pacific commander in case of emergency.

The Manchester and St. Paul are due to reach Pearl Harbor April 28 and sail for China two days later.

Four destroyers will accompany the cruisers. It has not been decided which will go, as two of those assigned, the Fechteler and Leonard F. Mason, were damaged in a collision near Pearl Harbor Friday.

The Pacific fleet command said that under State Department instructions it could not disclose the deployment of warships already in the Far East.

St. Laurent Convinced by Tour People Favor Early Election

CHAPLEAU, Ont., April 23 (CP).—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today his tour of the West indicated to him "the people feel there should be an election soon."

He told a press conference aboard the train taking him back to Ottawa it would be possible to dissolve Parliament almost at once and carry on the financial aspects of Government through Governor-General's warrants instead of supply voted by the House. Supply has been voted up to the end of May.

TRAVELING EAST

He and Trade Minister Howe are traveling eastward together after the Easter recess. Mr. Howe said recently that he favors a pre-Summer vote, but Mr. St. Laurent has given no tip-offs on his feelings.

One possible indication affecting reports of a swift dissolution was Mr. Howe's announcement that he and Deputy Trade Minister M. W. MacKenzie will go to London on Wednesday to discuss trade. Earlier it had been indicated that they wouldn't leave until next week.

The Prime Minister said if the Government dissolved the House almost at once and carried on under warrants, "the public would have the right to say if it was the right thing to do." It was done in 1940.

NO DELAY SEEN

He was asked if a previous statement that late July, August or early September would be inconvenient for a great number of voters ruled that period out for the election. He answered: "No. It would be possible to put them to that inconvenience."

He was asked if the June 18 vote in Coalition-run British Columbia would delay the Federal election, and he said "The two situations are quite separate."

Name Mitchell For Election

WELLAND, Ont., April 23 (CP).—Labor Minister Mitchell was nominated unanimously tonight for the next federal election at the Welland Liberal convention.

Mr. Mitchell was first elected to the Federal Government for Welland in 1942. He was re-elected to the House in 1945.

During the meeting, about 50 members of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) picketed the convention. The pickets carried signs condemning the Government's attitude concerning the present deep-sea strike called by the C.S.U.

Owner Jailed; S.P.C.A. Cares For 22 Dogs

NANAIMO, B.C., April 23 (CP).—Because a convicted man's dogs "must not suffer" the Nanaimo branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has arranged to care for 22 dogs owned by John Spencer, of Northfield, sentenced Thursday for bootlegging.

In default of a $400 fine he will serve four months in jail.

Magistrate L. Beaver-Potts commented the dogs should be cared for as he passed sentence.

Fadling Assails I.W.A. Officials For Report at Variance With Policy

BELLINGHAM, Wash., April 23 (AP).—Fighting mad, red-haired James E. Fadling, president of the International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.), today verbally lambasted officers of the C.I.O. affiliate's District No. 2, holding its annual convention here.

Labeling part of the officers' report, delivered by District President Harold Pritchett, Fadling said it was at variance with I.W.A. and C.I.O. policy on practically every issue.

The district report had criticized International Secretary-Treasurer Carl Winn for allegedly working behind backs of Local 2-46, Bellingham, in dealing with the Gailbraith Timber Company crew in a recent strike.

GAVE ASSISTANCE

Winn himself spoke later, defending his right as an International officer to "give assistance from headquarters to the membership whenever they asked for it."

"I have the honest conviction that Karley Larsen (and other officers of the local) are embarked on a suicidal campaign to ruin the International Woodworkers of America," Winn declared. He added that if attempted disaffiliation of British Columbia I.W.A. officers, headed by Harold Pritchett, had been successful, the same attempt would have been made in the Northern Washington district.

Pritchett's successor as head of British Columbia workers, Stewart Alsbury, followed Winn in support of the stand of the International officers.

Disregard of I.W.A. policies of compliance with the Taft-Hartley law's non-Communist provisions was a primary issue which touched off the strike and brought the split into the open.

Fadling said he didn't like the Taft-Hartley law, but that compliance is necessary in order to safeguard the union.

A navy veteran, he insisted that if the Marshall Plan is causing some hardships and discomfort, "It's a sacrifice well spent. It's better than having blood spilt in another world war."

Another point of the district criticism, unrestricted import of Canadian logs, was defended. "Remember, those logs are being produced by I.W.A. people, not Pritchett's men."

Larsen, presiding at the convention, commented afterward that increased wages would be the measuring stick for the rank and file of the membership.

Charges Reds Plotted Strike

BLACKPOOL, England, April 23 (AP).—Herbert Morrison, deputy prime minister, today charged that Communists plotted the London dock strike last week with the aim of wrecking Britain's economy.

LONDON (CP).—The report of the Royal Commission on the British Press, which was sent to the printers recently, is between 90,000 and 100,000 words long. It will be published about mid-June and is understood to give an unanimous finding.

LONDON, (CP).—Following reports of disorderly conduct the Battersea Borough Council is considering putting a ban on "jitterbugging" in dance halls under its control.

Oddities

BOSTON, April 23 (AP).—Two men walked into a Charlestown house while the five-year-old son of the family was alone.

"Any money around the house, Sonny," they inquired.

"Oh, sure, lots; wanna see?" the tot replied.

Police said the youngster obligingly led them to a box containing $200 in cash and jewelry. They walked off with it.

Only a hair brush was left in the box.

There was no report on whether the family used it on "Sonny."

AUSTIN, Tex., April 23 (AP).—Three Texas fishermen caught the fish that caught the fish that caught the fish.

They brought the 17-pound blue catfish to Bill Brill, camp operator near here.

"I noticed the tail of a fish in the catfish's mouth," Brill related. "On cutting the cat open I found it had swallowed and was choking on a white bass weighing nearly two pounds. Then I opened the white bass and found it had been having trouble swallowing a seven-inch shad.

"I figured this had gone far enough and did not cut open the shad."

Chief Suggests Indians Need Vote and Old Rights

Chief Thunderbird of the Saanich Indians came back from the wrestling wars in the United States yesterday and immediately picked up a cudgel to take part in the current Indian enfranchisement battle.

"If, by granting the franchise to British Columbia Indians, those in authority mean that the Indians can vote in all local and national elections and issues, and still keep all the benefits of the old Indian Act—then the idea sounds and looks good," the Chief stated.

"But let's know a little more about it before we go all out."

NEW ADVANTAGES

"New advantages of the old age pensions, family allowances and other benefits are all to the good. But we want the assurance in writing that we will keep our tax-free lands."

"That's the angle that worries most Indians. We want to keep our homes and lands as it," he stated.

Nobody can blame the Indians for being worried about this matter, the Chief pointed out.

The Indians are anxious to progress, spiritually, mentally and physically," he said.

"We have to have the sincere interest and aid of the white Canadian citizens to be able to play our part fully in the country's future."

TAKES EXCEPTION

Chief Thunderbird takes exception to a recent statement by Chief Percy Ross of the Songhee Indians that failure to seize the franchise opportunity would put the Indians "back 20 years."

"Percy Ross is speaking for himself, not the Indians of the whole province," Thunderbird stated.

"In our two-by-four school the children have to pack water and use kerosene lamps right now. We're 80 years behind the times—with or without the franchise," he said.

Model "T" Police Chase Brings Arrest of Four

City Police Constable Brian Ferguson commandeered a Model "T" sedan last night to chase four sailors who fled along Douglas Street after a weighing machine was pushed through a $125 plate-glass window of F. W. Woolworth Co. Ltd. store at the corner of View and Douglas Streets.

Hurrying to the scene after hearing a loud crash, Constable Ferguson called to the Model "T" driver and ordered him to take after the sailors.

The driver, with a policeman on the running board of his car, promptly stopped at View Street when he saw the red light was against him. Constable Ferguson ordered him to drive through and later arrested Harold D. Abbott, Arnold Gibson, Clarence Carlson and James Browne.

Explains Work On Newspapers

Complexity and costliness of producing the modern daily newspaper was explained to members of the Canadian Authors Association by James Morton at a recent meeting.

He traced the progress of the type, from the linotype room to the forms which are sent to the stereotyping room to be matted. There the mats are cast into curved plates to be attached to a rotary press, where the actual papers were turned out.

He told the members of the difficulty editors had working with restricted space that often compelled them to reject material.

"Papers are now less sensational in makeup and more dignified in style," he said.

Cruelty Fine Held Mockery

Minimum fine of $5 levied against a Maritime man for firing a pool of gasoline under a fallen horse to make it move and causing severe burns has raised the ire of the Victoria branch of the S.P.C.A.

[illegible] reported the man, William Stanley, of Burtt's Corner, Fredericton, N.B., was fined $5—the minimum—by a local magistrate.

James Barr, president of the local branch of the Humane Society, in a telegram to Justice Minister Stuart Garson protesting the fine, said:

"In view of the nature of the offence the fine of $5 would appear to be totally inadequate. You are respectfully requested to review this case.

"The imposing of the minimum penalty in a case involving deliberate cruelty makes a mockery of the laws enacted for the protection of animals."

A diamond is composed of pure crystalized carbon, which is the hardest substance in the world.

Empire Youth Group Branch Likely to Be Formed in City

It is expected that a Victoria branch of the Empire Youth Movement will be established here when its founder, Major F. J. Ney, visits this city April 26 and 27.

The Empire Youth Movement is reported to have come into being in May, 1937, at the time of the Coronation, when 10,000 young people from all parts of the British Empire gathered in London for a great rally in the Royal Albert Hall and to attend services at Westminster Abbey, Westminster Cathedral and the Central Synagogue.

The aim of the movement is to establish a closer fellowship among the youth of the Empire and to bring home to them their obligations and opportunities as citizens of "a world-wide community."

H.M. King George VI is patron of the movement.

Major-General C. R. Stein, Victoria, is acting on behalf of Major Ney, according to a recent announcement, and is inviting prominent [illegible] ties in Victoria to attend an initial meeting April 27 at 8 p.m. in the ground floor committee room in the City Hall.

Promising Young City Dancers Please Famous Choreographer

Youthful Victoria dancers, both boys and girls, tried out for parts in the forthcoming Starlight Theatre Productions last night.

In charge of auditions was Aida Broadbent, famous Hollywood choreographer, who will be dance director of both Starlight Theatre and Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars productions.

Following the auditions Miss Broadbent said she was pleased with the quality of the dancing shown.

SEVERAL HAVE FUTURE

At least seven of the 12 girls I witched definitely have a future in dance work if they want to continue their studies," she said. The boys, Miss Broadbent thought, could stand more training for ballet productions.

But biggest surprise was sprung by a male dancer, just the same. Miss Broadbent said she was "amazed" at the progress shown by dancer William McGrath, who had minor roles in some of last years' Starlight Theatre productions.

"He's done three years work in one. I wish all the youngsters were as ambitious," she stated.

The Hollywood dance director, who said she had just finished choreography for "The Great Waltz," now showing in California, admitted to being a little tired.

TRAVEL AUDITIONS

"Nothing but plane rides and auditions," she said.

while, she added, because there was always the thrill of discovering unexpected talent.

"And that's one of the nicest things about light opera productions like those presented by Starlight Theatre. It gives this city a chance to find out just how much talent it does possess."

Miss Broadbent also thought that light opera was one of the best places for dancers to find expression.

"They have freedom and wonderful music," she said.

"But it also means that they've got to have personality as well as just technique."

Seeks B.C. Seat

JAMES NEELY

City police commissioner and president of Ward Three Liberal Association, who announced yesterday he will seek nomination as Coalition candidate in three-member Victoria riding in Provincial election. Mr. Neely is manager and part owner of Douglas Hotel. Other candidates for seats are Captain D. J. Proudfoot and Ralph D. Matthews. Hon. W. T. Straith and Mrs. Nancy Hodges, sitting members, are almost certain to be in race. Hon. John Hart, Speaker of House, is expected to retire and reportedly will nominate Capt. D. J. Proudfoot to succeed him.

Arts Centre Seeks Grant Of $500 to $1,000

The Greater Victoria Arts Centre committee will go, artists' beret in hand, to the finance committee of the City Council, to ask for the $500 to $1,000 grant which they believe the city should contribute to the centre's support this year.

"It's time the fathers of the city took a paternal interest in a civic project which they are leaving to the responsibility of private citizens at the present time," members stated at a recent meeting.

The motion to approach civic authorities for aid came after the membership had heard a report on the slim budget that had seen the newly-established art centre through a successful first few months.

Dr. W. H. Hickman, head of the modern language department at Victoria College, was elected arts centre president, with A. D. Ross as vice-president.

J. A. Whitehead was re-elected treasurer and Mrs. J. G. Austin, Jr., was appointed temporary secretary.

On the board of directors are Madame Renee Archibald, Lieut.-Col. E. H. Casper, Owen Goward, Mrs. J. G. Austin, Jr., Willard Ireland, A. W. Johns, John Lidstone, J. I. Mutter, H. G. Parker, A. D. Ross, Miss Gwen Scott, Mrs. Will Spencer, Mrs. A. J. Tullis, Miss Sara Spencer, Mrs. Ina Uhthoff, John Wade, J. A. Whitehead, Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. A. S. Wyllie, Miss Margaret Izard, Kenneth McAllister.

Victoria Librarian Heads Commission

Miss Margaret Clay, Victoria Public Library librarian, was appointed chairman of the Provincial Public Library Commission yesterday, succeeding H. Norman Lidster, New Westminster.

Miss Clay was appointed a commission member a year ago.

Following the annual meeting, the Victoria Public Library Board entertained at a luncheon the members of the commission, and visitor, Dr. John Adams Lowe, Rochester, N.Y., librarian.

PLAN ANTELOPE CENSUS

REGINA (CP).—Plans to conduct an aerial census of antelope, estimated at 30,000 animals, has been announced by Resources Minister Brockelbank. It will be carried out in co-operation with Alberta and the State of Montana and is expected to be completed by early May.

Spring Exodus From B.C. Still Goes On

The Spring exodus from British Columbia is still under way, according to Family Allowance figures issued by the Department of National Health office here.

For the second month in succession, more families left British Columbia during April for other parts of Canada than entered from other provinces. Departures totaled 354, arrivals 208, the report states.

Of the total number who left the province 117 went to Saskatchewan, 123 to Alberta and 45 to Manitoba.

Figures for families entering British Columbia showed 60 from Saskatchewan, 121 from Alberta and 37 from Manitoba.

Despite the minor exodus, the total number of children registered for family allowances in British Columbia continued to mount. In the current month 148,161 families received allowance for 280,379 children. Cheques amounted to payment of $1,665, 796. The average allowance per child was $5.94.

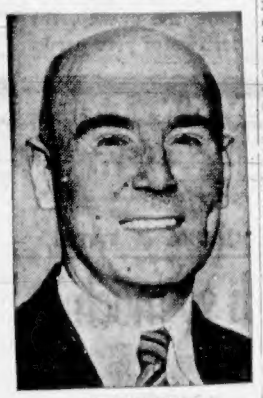
New Radio Lecture Series Set on Canadian Foibles

This Week's Radio

A man trained in the understanding of human foibles and an educationist of national reputation has been invited to make seven C.B.C. network broadcasts on these subjects.

He is Dr. John M. Ewing, principal of Victoria College, and he will begin his series entitled "Our Canadian Foibles" on Wednesday at 10 p.m.

Last Autumn he gave a similar series under the title of "Our Changing Values." His talks were characterized by penetrating analysis of the social structure and constructive suggestions for the correction of its faults. The strength and weaknesses of Canada's educational system were shown.



DR. J. M. EWING

CHARACTER ANALYSIS

Dr. Ewing begins the new series with a script entitled "Our Solid Virtues." In it he will devote an analysis of the Canadian character as the result of racio-cultural, geographic and climatic factors.

By contrast, his script on May 4 will level rather severe criticism. A general examination of egoism, under the title of "The Irrepressible Ego," will be followed by a scrutiny of Canadian ego-expression in terms of Canadian values.

"Dracula," undoubtedly one of the most blood-curdling horror stories ever written, is to be Stage 49's presentation on Sunday, April 24.

The book by the British novelist, Bram Stoker, written just before the turn of the century, has been adapted for radio by George Salverson, the Canadian playwright whose radio version of Sean O'Casey's "June and the Paycock" was presented recently on C.B.C. Wednesday night.

Readers of the book have never failed to be horrified by Count Dracula's depravities, ever since the original edition was published in 1897.

This week "Vancouver Theatre" shifts from its normal Monday night spot to Friday at 8 p.m.

James Ivor Jackson, a graduate of the University of British Columbia, who is now on scholarship at the University of Iowa studying creative writing, has submitted a script entitled "Storm" to producer Robert Allen, and Mr. Allen has scheduled the play for inclusion in the next edition of Vancouver Theatre.

"Storm" is a radio adaptation of one chapter in a book which Mr. Jackson is now writing. The episode describes a flight over the Indian Ocean and a conflict with the elements.

Introducing Wednesday night's production of "William Tell," by Friedrich Schiller, Dr. Hermann Boeschenstein, a Swiss-born Canadian living in Toronto, will speak at 8 p.m.

His talk will include something about present-day Switzerland, the country's history and the background of the William Tell legend.

Schiller's "William Tell" is a drama of the Swiss people. It emphasizes their efforts to throw off the Austrian yoke, rather than the personal story of the national hero who gave the play its name. And the author's approach gives the drama an epic breadth.

Four Jaycees To Speak On Freedom

"We Are For Freedom" will be the theme of brief talks to be presented by four members of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce at an oratorical contest to be held tomorrow night in the Council Chamber of the City Hall.

Taking part in the Junior Chamber contest will be Norman Parkins, Glen Murdock, William Temple and James N. Isaac. Each will speak for 15 minutes, and the program will be open to the public. Activities will start at 8, and Frank Paulding will present the winner with a handsome trophy at 9:30.

Winner of the event will go to Prince Rupert to speak at a Junior Chamber of Commerce convention to be held there June 4 and 5.

PERPETUAL TROPHY

The perpetual trophy to be awarded tomorrow night was donated by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and winners of each annual contest will receive, in addition, a small replica to keep as his own.

The oratorical contest is being held by Junior Chamber on a national basis. Top winners of the Canada-wide event will attend a national Junior Chamber convention.

SILENT FORESTS

CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Man. (CP).—Prospector Bob Hassett foresees the time when the forests will be silent due to the influx of the white man "north of 54" and to his habit of poisoning what he doesn't want. He said even in the bush today you seldom here a chirp or a call.

Victoria High to Offer Play Version of Novel

As its Spring play this year, the Victoria High School will present Jane Austen's classic novel, "Pride and Prejudice," at 8 p.m. next Friday and Saturday in the school auditorium.

Proceeds will be used in completing the Victoria High School Memorial Stadium.

The play is the story of the well-known novel of early 19th century English life and deals with the efforts of a mother to see her five daughters well settled in marriage.

Principal roles are played by Bruce Madeley as Mr. Bennet, Jessie Sutherland as Mrs. Bennet, and the daughters by Pat Clarke, Dawn Van Norman, Cynthia Graham, Jennifer Brumsky and June O'Neil.

In supporting parts are Eve Harvey, Dianne Clifford, Rita Price, Carol Pomeroy, June Day, Brian Ainnough, Robert Lambie, Bruce Naylor Michael Devon-Nuttall.

Director is T. W. Mayne with Marion Lawrence, Pat Ludlow and Vera Williamson, as student assistants. Production manager is R. Hunter, assisted by N. Simister, while costumes are in charge of N. Douglas. N. Harwood is business manager.

Female Help Still Lagging Behind Demand

Great difficulty in meeting the demand for female help in nearly all occupations was reported yesterday by the Victoria office of the National Employment Service.

Officials said that the demand was still on the increase and that the current shortage is "as bad as during the war."

The ratio of applicants to available positions was down to two to one, according to employment office figures. The situation is aggravated, officials say, by the fact that half the female registrants are married and many are only available for part-time work.

Generally, the employment situation continues to improve, the report states, with ratio of male applicants to jobs down to a new low of eight to one.

Court Praises Work of A.A.

The work of Alcoholics Anonymous again was lauded by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court yesterday.

Before sentencing a young man on an intoxication charge, the magistrate asked the accused if he had ever gone to A.A. for help. He replied in the negative.

"A young man like you shouldn't appear in this court so often," stated Magistrate Hall. "I think you should go to A.A. and see if you can be cured. It is a wonderful organization."

Social Credit Preparing For Election

Major A. H. Jukes, vice-president of the Social Credit Association of Canada and president of the British Columbia Social Credit Association, announced this week that his party will name candidates in possibly half of the ridings in the forthcoming provincial elections.

He said that 20 candidates had already been decided upon and that it was hoped more would be announced later.

Most Social Credit candidates will contest urban ridings, with some up-country constituencies also naming candidates, it was announced.

List of candidates would be released in a few days, Major Jukes said.

WOMAN TOP ORATOR

MONTREAL (CP). — A woman was gold medal winner for the first time at the recent annual oratorical contest of the Montreal Debating League. Miss Cay Kingsland topped the group of five who competed in the "ladies only" contest.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE WORD "TO STIPPLE"—From the Fine Arts to the House Wall

"I remember when stippling first became another word for planting an apartment-house wall," writes one of our readers, "and at the same time the appearance of the wall changed a bit too. It seems to have kept that change to a rougher, sort of rippled paint surface in place of the complete flatness of former times. I have observed painters at work and fail to see any difference in their method of applying the paint, so think it must be in the chemicals, or perhaps some preparation of the surface before painting. What I wish to ask you is what the word "stippling" actually means, what is its origin?'

The word "stipple" is from the techniques of engraving. Its derivation is from the Danish "stippelen," denoting to make points, to dot or spot with dots. This is from "stippel," a diminutive of "stip," a dot.

The term's significance in the art of engraving is the engraving by means of dots rather than lines. It has application also in the use of water colors, to describe the application of the paint in small, short touches. An eminent French modernist is noted for this type of brushwork. That is how "stippling" started.

Men in Room With View Keep Track of Shipping

HALIFAX, April 23 (CP).—In a tiny room 13 floors above a waterfront street, E. V. Glassey "just keeps track of ships."

He is one of a four-man staff in Halifax Signals Station, part of the Federal Transport Department's harbor and ocean communications system.

His station uses three telephones, three windows and a blackboard to keep tabs on the ebb and flow of Halifax's inter-harbor, coastal and sea-going commerce—some 3,000 ships a year.

ANSWER QUESTIONS

Fundamentally, the station's job "is to advise any persons interested" of harbor movements. This field includes a dozen different types of questioners, ranging from shipping agencies and tug operators to Lloyd's Registry and the public.

In February, the station handled 7,500 phone calls, about 50 a day.

When a pilot goes aboard an incoming ship, perhaps ten miles out, his cutter advises Halifax Signals. The station notifies "the interested" and chalks up the ship's name on a blackboard. Later, her berth number also is recorded.

Signals is told when a pilot leaves an outgoing vessel. This time, Lloyd's is informed and sailing insurance becomes valid. Only Lloyd's, as a general rule, is interested in outgoing ships.

KEPT INFORMED

Vessels in or near port are kept informed of weather conditions by a signals mast on the station's roof. At night, markers indicating gales and their force and direction are replaced by lights.

In storms, berthed ships are watched for dangerous dragging which may result in grounding or pier damage.

Periodical reports on vessels in port are recorded. This record includes any changes in position or signal flags a ship may hoist, asking aid or giving information.

The station also has a 'phone line to the direction-finding and signal station at Camperdown, outside the harbor. Camperdown maintains radio contact with lighthouses and dispenses navigational aid to ships at sea.

The four men work 40-45 hours a week, 24 hours a day.

"It's not bad," says Glassey. "There's quite a view from up here in Summer."

Repairs Slated For Museum In Montreal

MONTREAL, April 23 (CP).—Montreal's oldest house, the Chateau de Ramezay, is to get a face-lifting as a result of a $215,000 Restoration Fund campaign in May launched by the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society.

The chateau, built in 1705 by Claude de Ramezay, the city's 11th governor, was turned into a national museum in 1895 and now is the home of the Antiquarian Society.

The museum contains a valuable collection of objects dating to the earliest times of New France and occupation by the English, and one of the finest collections of coins on the continent.

The society plans to repair the building which last year admitted 32,000 visitors. Part of the money will go for repairs and restoration of parts of the old chateau, for preservation of equipment and the [illegible] it contains. About $50,000 will be used to add new pieces to the collection.

The chateau until recent years was connected historically with every major event in the city.

After the cession of New France to Britain in 1760 the chateau was bought by an Englishman who in turn sold it to the Government. Then it became known as the Chateau de Montreal and the home of the city's governors until 1849.

It was here Benjamin Franklin and other representatives of the Continental Congress, met French Canadian leaders in 1776 in an attempt to influence them to join the American Revolution.

Record Wheat Acreage Seen On Prairies This Summer

WINNIPEG, April 23 (CP).—Last year's 21,361,000 prairie acres seeded to wheat may be exceeded this Summer as Western Canadian farmers take what some believe will be their last shot at big money in the wheat market.

Confronted with an unpredictable world demand for their commodity, the farmers are expected to take advantage this year of the security offered by the Anglo-Canadian and international wheat agreements and sow what may be a record wheat acreage in the face of threatened grasshopper plagues and drought conditions. Under the agreements their initial payments will be $1.75 a Bushel.

GRASSHOPPER THREAT

Exactly what the acreage will be has not been officially estimated yet but while Government surveys are computing figures farmers have been warned that grasshoppers will comprise one of the worst threats to their crops this Summer.

To combat this menace, the Governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have organized anti-grasshopper campaigns, providing farmers and municipalities with poison bait. They also have urged that early seeding be followed as much as possible, giving the wheat a chance to grow sturdy before the main hordes of newly-hatched 'hoppers descend on the fields.

With seeding already started in sections of all three prairie provinces, farmers are hopeful that the early planting program can be followed generally across the prairies. Last year severe floods delayed seeding but this year floods are not a menace except in isolated areas.

DROUGHT FACTOR

Possibility of drought conditions, meanwhile, is another factor being considered, particularly in Saskatchewan, where dust storms already have swept southern and central portions of the province.

Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollet warned last week that the crop outlook in Saskatchewan was not so good, with rain badly needed to remedy moisture deficiency due to a dry Autumn. With Saskatchewan being Canada's major wheat-producing province a drought there could have a serious affect on the Dominion's wheat output for this year. Farmers already have been recalling the drought years of the 30's and wondering if 1949 will prove a repetition.

PRODUCED LION'S SHARE

Last year Saskatchewan seeded 13,329,000 acres in wheat, Alberta 5,858,000 and Manitoba 2,174,000. With the average yield an acre being 16.8 bushels, the prairie provinces produced the lion's share of the Dominion's 1948 wheat harvest of 393,300,000 bushels. The harvest was valued at $554,400,000, an increase of $95,000,000 over the value of the 1947 crop.

While rains are not as badly needed in Alberta as in Saskatchewan, Government Agriculture Department officials have reported sub-soil moisture depleted in parts and Alberta farmers are looking to the Summer with a wary eye.

CONTINENTAL'S BETTER PROTECTION

1948 saw another increase in the ranks of Canadians protected by Continental Casualty Company against financial loss due to accident or sickness. The Company is proud of its continuing record of service . . . of providing security for families whose welfare would be jeopardized by sudden loss of the bread-winner's income. The expense of hospitalization can often mean the end of hard earned savings. Loss of the weekly pay cheque due to disability can spell financial disaster. A reputation for prompt payment of claims . . . conscientious service to every policyholder . . . has made Continental the logical choice of thousands of Canadians who have sought accident and sickness protection in the past year. 1948 also saw a healthy growth of the resources which stand behind every Continental policy. It has been, truly . . . THE BEST YEAR OF OUR LIVES!

Weaving Her Occupation, Not a Hobby

By EILEEN LEAROYD

"It might be said that a good many women don't even know their right from their left . . . never warp from their weft."

But Mollie Turner, who lives with her mother in a delightful seaside home at Ten Mile Point, does like the Misses she spins.

She ties up her warp and weft so well that she finds it no trouble at all to weave hardwearing rugs, linen hand towels, scarves, shopping bags, tweed coats and jackets of exceptional fine texture.

At the moment her 36-inch, wide [illegible] is weaving [illegible] mats of the Sugar Reel pattern. To the untutored eye the loom with its six foot treadles looks not a little like the skeleton of an organ.

One of the charter members of the Victoria Hand Weavers Guild, Mollie Turner is also preparing work now for the next hand-weaving exhibition to be held in the Empress Hotel in June. Exhibitors from all over the Dominion are expected to arrive for this event.

She gets most of her cotton threads from Winnipeg, her wool and homespun from New Brunswick.

Weaving is not so much a hobby with Miss Turner as an occupation, but she still finds time to be an active worker for St. Georges Anglican Church.

Mollie was born in Weymouth, England. She graduated from a horticultural college and began her working career gardening. At another period she spent five years as matron of a private school and after that ran a tea shop in Beauty. Later still she was a cake-maker at The Red House, Eat-O.

My job was stuffing those little bone in top hats and high colonel full of cake," she explained.

Miss Turner took up weaving when she came to Victoria to live. She took up a few lessons and is privately self-taught although she has intermittent . . . attended various weaving schools.

As one of the initial members of the Victoria Hand Weavers Guild, proud of the guild's development, happily reports there are now some 40 or 50 members busy spinning and weaving in the city.

The Yankees suffered a slim half-game lead in the American League [illegible] as Cleveland Indians bowed to Detroit Tigers 5-4 in 10 innings. Philadelphia Athletics slugged two Washington pitchers for 20 hits and a 14-1 triumph to move into second place behind the Yanks. The Indians dropped into a third-place tie with Detroit and Chicago White Sox, who trounced St. Louis Browns 12-5.

BRAVES WALLOPED

Over in the National League New York Boston proceedings were reversed. Mickey Livingston's strong arm led his old to become the Giants' first string catcher by driving home four runs with a homer and two singles as the Giants hammered five Boston pitchers for 16 hits and an 11-3 victory. Defeat dropped the Braves all the way to third place.

Brooklyn Dodgers took over the pace-setting role, taking advantage of six bases on balls by Robin Roberts in the first four innings to fashion an 8-6 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies.

Chicago Cubs pounded across eight runs in the seventh inning to whip St. Louis Cardinals 11-7 before 22,000 fans in the National League's first night game of the

The Sportlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

There are (illegible) always two sides to (illegible) some classes in baseball. It is necessary, for the good of the game and also for the good of the big league player. It doesn't mean a knock for the major league member of a Class B, C or D club.

TWO SUGGESTIONS

Here are two suggestions we offer baseball's commissioner, Happy Chandler, leading officials and club owners.

No. 1—Keep the reserve clause but also appoint a court of three or five men to hear the player's side of any salary argument.

No one has to have a court for Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller, Stan Musial, Hal Newhouser and the others. But there are others coming in who don't too often get the better of the debate. This court could see that the reserve clause worked no hardship with proper salary adjustments.

No. 2—Put a limit on the length of the reserve clause (perhaps). What about seven years? A kid of 18 or 20 signs a contract. He is bound for the next seven years. But after that why not give him the chance to do the best he can for himself? He will have a stronger incentive if he is an established star. But he might have a better chance if the way is left open. Five years has been suggested. Seven years seems to be a fairer length of time.

Baseball, a half mixture of sport and business, is a funny game. Today it is only a game for poor players. Ted Williams has been making more money than owner Tom Yawkey after two big seasons (owner Yawkey must be $1 Million in the red).

MAJORS MONOPOLY

Big league clubs have been taking over minor league setups for fear this fast-growing the big league monopoly. But if major league owners didn't run these minor leagues, there would be far fewer minor league clubs.

There are times when big league clubs must pay out large wads of cash to develop young players into first-class players. And less than 6 per cent of the young minor-league ball players ever reach the majors.

The reserve clause could be extremely fair. It could also be extremely unfair as operated by certain types of owners.

GAMES FOR THE RICH

Baseball, racing and pro football are games for only the rich today. This doesn't mean one can buy a pennant or purchase a Derby. Tom Yawkey has discovered you can't buy a pennant. So has Walter Briggs, Detroit's owner.

Mr. Briggs, a Detroit writer informs me, has had all the worst of it. He pays out the biggest salaries in the game, and I am including the Red Sox and the Yankees.

He was the first to pay a $52,000 bonus, to Dick Wakefield, who has not been worth $10 to him as a help in winning games. His teams have never played to the salaries he has paid them. The Tigers have been terribly overpaid. They won't even hustle. I knew from the start what Red Rolfe, an able manager was up against.

PLAYERS OVERPAID

The point we make here is that ball players are quite often overpaid. But an owner after a pennant can't afford to get a star (as Ruth is the only ball player I ever knew who was worth over $40,000 or $50,000 in team value. Ruth was worth any figure you might name.

Few big league club owners today make much money, even with good teams.

In racing, Greentree, owned by Jock Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Payson, has made money in something like two of the last eighteen years. Warren Wright's stable makes an annual cleanup. But I can't think of any others at this moment.

FOOTBALL'S WEAKNESS

Owners in pro football take the worst beating. This is largely their own fault, due to their stubbornness in getting together. Each league accuses the other of every crime from arson to murder. But year after year their bitter rivalry costs them millions.

Young college backs come away from the campus to pick up $20,000 for three months' play. This is at the rate of $80,000 a year. Just fair linemen get from $10,000 to $12,000 where $5,000 would be a big salary cheque.

The odd part is that all of those connected with pro football have found that one league could make money for only three or four teams. The others always take a beating. Pro football needs two leagues—or there isn't any room in pro football for any league.

It takes a rich citizen to dabble in pro sport today.

Puck Careers Of Students Being Probed

TORONTO, April 23 (CP). — At least two Provincial Departments of Education are studying the problem of boys leaving high school to play hockey, John L. Marias, president of the Canadian Secondary Schools Association said today.

It is understood that Ontario and one Western Province are making the study of what happens to boys at that age when they leave school.

He said a survey of 115 boys who left school to play junior or professional hockey showed "almost every one . . . stopped his formal education . . . the schedule of games and practices made it almost impossible for them to attend classes regularly enough to make any sort of progress in studies."

Steel work has been completed, and start made on decking. Temporary bridge at side has been in use since last year. Coombs is farming centre with population of 420, located west of Parksville.

5,000,000 Seedlings Planted On Vancouver Island To Date

B.C. Forest Service officials announced yesterday that more than 5,000,000 seedlings have been planted to date under the 1949 reforestation program.

Planting will continue for two more weeks and it is expected that 7,500,000 trees will be planted on Vancouver Island this season.

Last year more than 10,000,000 seedlings were planted on logged-off areas of the Island. The 1949 program has been shortened because of lack of trees caused by Winter nursery damage.

CHANCES IMPROVED

The comparatively dry Spring has been kind to young seedlings but ... crews to work ... Recent rain will ... chances of survival of the plantings.

The Forest Service at Campbell River has used High School students and their teachers to help in the plantings during the Easter vacation. One forester reported the students and teachers have done very good work.

FIRST COMPLETED

First project to be completed is at Tahsis on the West Coast, where the planting of 400,000 trees is expected to be finished this week-end.

This is the largest planting program ever accomplished on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The last project to be completed will be at Great Central Lake where planting is expected to continue until May 7. The service is also planting in the Cowichan Valley.

About 1,000,000 trees are being planted on the Island by private industry.

May Require Bigger Homes

PARKSVILLE, April 23—Marcel Heiselbeck was appointed dog catcher-collector and groundkeeper for the village of Parksville at a recent meeting of the village commissioners.

Among other business ... was the amending of the building ... to read to the effect that all future dwellings within the municipality shall contain not less than 500 square feet of floor space instead of 400 feet as was previously required.

Arrangements have been made to have the right of way on Temple Road cleared in preparation for the laying of the water pipeline. Commissioners are investigating the possibility of a garbage collection by-law being drawn up.

Duncan District News

DUNCAN, April 23—Brig.-Gen. H. Bodart, officer commanding B.C. area, inspected the 108th Battery, 6th L.A.A. Regiment (Reserve Army), in the Duncan Armoury Wednesday evening. Active recruiting has been going on for some time and the local unit is reported to be very efficient in its training. The public was invited to the inspection. Also attending were members of the local advisory committee, composed of Mayor J. C. Waugh, I. Matthew, president of the Canadian Legion, Major G. H. Weston and R. F. Barnes.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P., has notified the Duncan Dominion Day Carnival committee of his acceptance of their invitation to officially open the Dominion Day event at the Athletic Park, Duncan. The committee is going all out to put on the biggest show yet and it is expected that last year's estimated crowd of 14,000 will be surpassed. New bleachers are being erected to take care of the large crowds expected to attend the two-day baseball tournament.

The Adanac Construction Company, Vancouver, has been given the contract to rebuild Canada Avenue from the Agricultural Hall to the city boundary—all of Ingram Street and Boundary Street. While this is a major job, the economies that have been practised by the council will enable them to pay for same with funds on hand.

Now that a date for the forthcoming provincial election has been chosen the different parties in the district are getting warmed up to the task of trying to get their platforms over with the people. The Coalition Party will select its standard bearer next week and is expected to put on an active drive to recapture this seat from the C.C.F. The unknown quantity is the large increase in the number of voters on the lists. There has been a large influx of Prairie people to this area since the last election. S. Guthrie is the present member.

Prison Terms Handed Down In Three Cases

NANAIMO, April 23—Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court today handed down sentences on three cases in which the jury brought in verdicts of "Guilty".

Lloyd George Moffatt, Powell River, jointly convicted with Albert Pitton on theft of a steer at Hernando Island, property of Michael Mattson, was sentenced to 60 days in jail. The jury made strong recommendation for leniency.

Crown Prosecutor P. Cunliffe said he had instructions that Pitton had convictions for possession of stolen goods and taking a car without consent, which Pitton admitted. He was sentenced to six months in jail.

Edward John Evans of Ladysmith, convicted of "uttering a forged cheque," was sentenced to 60 days in jail. The jury recommended leniency.

Wald Nelson, Nanaimo logging operator, convicted of possession of stolen equipment, spare bars and a axe, property of Brandel Stewart & Wood, Port Alberni, was sentenced to nine months in jail to start from today.

Farmers Busy On New Plans

PORT ALBERNI, April 23—Through a revised and lively interest on the part of the 300-year-old Alberni District Farmers Institute, agriculture in Alberni Valley looks ahead to expansion.

The past year for the organization has been a busy one devoted to improvement of herds and conditions, poultry, milk and produce generally, and a consistent fight against diseases of animals and poultry.

The Winter witnessed a series of lectures by university and Government officials on a wide variety of farm topics including agronomy, engineering, land clearing, field crops, small fruits, poultry, animal husbandry and animal pathology.

The institute has been active in the promotion of the annual district Fall fair. It sponsors boys and girls calf and poultry clubs, field days and tree-pruning exhibitions and went so far as to take up the matter of artificial insemination for study to see if it could be practised here economically.

ROOM FOR FARMS

The Alberni Valley, while primarily a lumbering territory, contains many good farms and there is room for more. Under the aggressive policy of the Farmers Institute, the possibilities of expansion appear bright.

Heading the institute for a second term is Frank Allen, who came out of the services to take a ten-acre farm under V.L.A. Behind him he has a strong executive of older members, who are backing him heart ... In his spirited endeavors. They are Donald McKinnon, vice-president; Thomas Orteve, secretary-treasurer, and Charles Chase, R. Busby, Percy Forbes, Ted Thompson, Leslie McKinnon, Gus Woodske, James Stitch and Elliff Bayne, directors.

Legion Branch Holds Meeting At Cobble Hill

COBBLE HILL, April 23—A number of members of Branch No. 191, Chemainus, were welcome guests of Cobble Hill Branch No. 226 Canadian Legion at their regular meeting held recently. Comrade George Saunders, president, welcomed the visitors.

Three new members were admitted, R. G. Chadwick, Richard Brown and Jack La Fortune.

The financial statement read by the secretary-treasurer showed the branch to be in a sound position. Reports were also given by the transportation committee, the sick and relief committee, and from the delegate to the Zone Council who informed the meeting that the immediate past president had been elected to the office of zone commander for the Cowichan and Gulf Islands Zone.

Floyd Bendle, president of the visiting Chemainus Branch, spoke briefly.

The following members were elected delegates to the provincial convention in Victoria, May 22 to 25: George Showers and A. G. B. Lewis, with J. A. Murphy as alternate.

A. G. B. Lewis was presented with a past president's badge in recognition of his services as president during the initiation stage of the branch. Mr. Saunders made the presentation, paying tribute to the work performed by Mr. Lewis.

Following the meeting, Legion members hosted with members of the Women's Auxiliary for dancing and supper.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary held their meeting the same evening with Mrs. W. Wilkes in the chair. Members of the Chemainus W.A. were guests with several other visitors.

Regular business was attended to, which included an invitation to a card party by the Malahat Branch, on May 13.

CATTLE RUSTLERS BUSY

CAPETOWN (CP)—The meat shortage here now is so acute that cattle rustlers have started operations on a large scale, and reports of stolen animals almost as soon as they have been removed from Pretorian pastures. Apart from small stock thieves receiving stock positive check worth more than £1,000 ($4,000).

The Importance of Teen-age Regularity —

By helping to stimulate the action of the bowels, kidneys, liver and stomach, B.B.B. aids teen-agers over those unregulated periods. It aids in the elimination of wastes and impurities from the body. The result is often a smoother, clearer skin.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—The Stock Market ran into heavy weather this week before reaching clear waters today.

From Monday through Friday nearly $1,500,000,000 was lopped off the market value of all shares listed on the Exchange. Demand revived Saturday and a small part of the week's losses retrieved.

[illegible] in the week was comparatively mild. On Thursday, though, the market took one of the worst lickings it has had this year. A degree of stability appeared on Friday but today a decisive upward trend developed.

Buying during the short session was well distributed, with almost every group of stocks sharing in the improvement. Gains ranged from fractions to around a point.

Volume amounted to 340,000 shares, in contrast with 410 000 a week ago. Of the 674 individual stocks which traded, 364 advanced and 123 declined.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved up .3 of one point to 62.8, the only gain of the week. At the close a week earlier the average stood at 64.

The Thursday break in the [illegible] was the most severe of the year and left the list at the lowest level since February 28 and not far from the 1948-49 low.

Winnipeg Grain

WINNIPEG, April 23 (CP).—Trading was fairly dull today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. After a brief flurry in the opening, grains moved narrowly.

Oats and barley held a firm tone but there were few purchases by shippers. Occasional buying in oats was made by mills and processors were fairly active in barley. Rye moved narrowly and there was some buying by American accounts.

The United Kingdom was allocated 180 000 bushels of wheat while 300,000 were destined for Portugal.

METALS REVIEW

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—Refined copper was offered at a two-year low price of 20 cents a pound this week—with no takers.

Zinc skidded another cent to 13 cents a pound but demand failed to improve noticeably. Lead drifted along unchanged with sales meagre at 15 cents.

Brass mills this week trimmed the prices of their manufactured copper products and brass and other copper alloy items in proportion to the lower smelter price for refined copper. The reductions also reflected recent cuts in zinc. Copper wire and cable quotations were not changed.

Prices of Cattle Higher for Week

OTTAWA, April 23 (CP).—Slaughter cattle made some gains on Canadian markets this week, while feeder cattle were easier at Winnipeg and steady elsewhere, the Dominion Agriculture Department reported in its weekly livestock review.

At Toronto best weighty steers were $22.50-$23; medium to good light steers, $20-$22; good heifers, $20.50-$21.25; cows, $17-$18, and bulls, $18-$18.75. At Montreal steers were $21-$22, and bulls, $17.50-

Winnipeg offered light steers $21.50-$21.75; good kinds, $20 to $21, and mediums at a low of $18. Calgary had some strictly choice steers at $21.75; choice light steers, $21.25-$21.65; good, $20.50-$21, and medium, $17.50-$20. Edmonton bought choice steers at $21-$21.50; Saskatoon, $20.50-$21; Prince Albert $21; Moose Jaw, $20-$20.50 and Regina, $19-$21.

Exports of cattle for immediate slaughter and for feeding to the United States in the week totalled 3,609 head bringing the total since January 1 to 40,286. Exports of dairy cattle and pure bred stock for the week were 1,465 and the total to date this year was 18,430.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, April 23 (AP).—Grains did little of anything on the Board of Trade today.

Grains moved irregularly over most of the session but weakened toward the close. Continued heavy receipts of corn, and cash sales served to depress futures of that grain. The Government bought 500,000 bushels of wheat for export sales yesterday.

"Gosh! It seems awful good to see you again, Carol. It's been a long time since you were here. I couldn't figure why Mom wanted me to put on my other suit. I mean, my good suit. I was glad to do it, though, for you, Mr. Blake."

Carol didn't date look back at that. It seemed to her that Chester didn't know even that. If he did, he was pleased over it.

"You mean that she told you that your girl friend or one of them was coming to see you?" she asked sulkily.

"She told me you were going to take me for a ride in your new car."

"Who, me? I'm not making any date with you, Chester Blake. I'm engaged to Al Ames, and I'm going to marry him. I wouldn't go out with you for anything. I wouldn't be seen with you. I wouldn't be caught dead with you. I wouldn't—I wouldn't—I wouldn't—"

Chester grinned. "I get the picture," he said. "I'm sorry I made you mad, Carol. I'll be on my way."

He turned and walked away. Carol, her face flaming, watched him go. She was furious with him, with herself, with Mom for inviting him to dinner. She wished she had never seen him again. She wished—

Chester stopped and turned. "I'll be seeing you, Carol," he said.

Carol made no reply. She watched him get into his car and drive away. She watched the car disappear around the corner. Then she went into the house and upstairs to her room. She threw herself on her bed and cried.

CHAPTER XXVI

Carol awoke the next morning with a headache. She remembered crying herself to sleep, but she could not remember why she had cried. She got up and looked at herself in the mirror. Her eyes were red and swollen. She looked a fright. She bathed her face in cold water and went downstairs.

Mom was in the kitchen. She looked at Carol and said, "Why, you look terrible. What's the matter?"

Carol sat down at the table. She said, "I don't know, Mom. I guess I'm sick."

Mom felt Carol's forehead. "You don't have a fever," she said. "Maybe you're coming down with a cold. You'd better go back to bed and rest. I'll bring you some breakfast."

Carol shook her head. "I'm not sick enough to stay in bed," she said. "I'll be all right. I'll get dressed and help you with the housework."

Mom looked at her daughter. She said, "Carol, what's the matter? Did you and Al have a fight?"

Carol shook her head. "No, Mom," she said. "Al and I didn't have a fight. I—I don't want to talk about it."

Mom said, "Carol, I'm your mother. I want to help you. I want you to tell me what's troubling you."

Carol said, "I'm not troubled, Mom. I'm all right. I'll get dressed and help you with the housework

Unkiln-dried or green wood shrinks, warps and checks, causing considerable trouble and expensive repairs. First ... floors ... Atop the joists the sub-flooring is laid. This is always laid diagonally ... at about a 45 degree angle to the side walls. Laying it diagonally causes some waste of wood, but this is amply compensated for in that it prevents the warping and opening of finish-floor joints and adds to the rigidity of the building. One in. x 6 in. is used in the best construction with the butt joints cut diagonally over and parallel with the joist. Slight spacing is allowed for swelling due to moisture.

When we come to the outside partitions much the same specifications hold for studs the upright framing members of the home, as for joists. Studs are never less than 2 in. x 4 in. in cross sections and never spaced less than 16-inch centres. The corner posts are usually composed of at least three studs strongly nailed together. The studding rests on a single 2 in. x 4 in. bottom plate and topped with a double 2 in. x 4 in. plate. There ... also hold true on all inside partitions.

For example, short headers could be made with two pieces ... x 4 in. nailed ... side by side making a 4 in. x 4 in. with ... piece placed in the middle making a 4 in. x 6 in. Can Lazy Liver Slow You Up?

Few people realize the liver must produce 2 pints of bile everyday—to ensure normal "good digestion". And lack of exercise, or eating too much fatty food, may cut down your liver's flow.

When that happens, the process of digestion and elimination may slow up, too. That's why many people take Bile Beans at such times. Gentle-acting, all-vegetable Bile Beans work while you sleep, to get more bile flow and relieve constipation. Do try them. See how much peppier you feel, when you take BILE BEANS at bedtime! Over 7 million boxes used yearly. 84

Western Allies Offer Germans Extra Powers

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France today held out an offer of broader self-governing powers to the Western Germans in an urgent effort to get a Federal state started in the former enemy country.

With a possible cold-war victory for Russia hinging on the outcome, the United States rushed its top trouble-shooter on German affairs, Ambassador Robert D. Murphy, overseas to sell the compromise proposal to balking leaders of the German Social Democratic Party.

The powerful Socialists had claimed that the original three-power plan for a German state in the Western occupation zones would impose too great a limit on the proposed Government, especially in financial matters.

The new concessions are aimed at meeting some of the Socialists' demands, which have blocked approval of the plan by the German Parliamentary Council working at Bonn on the draft of a constitution for the new state.

The first reaction to the proposals from Bonn was favorable. Some political leaders there predicted the compromise offer might break the present stalemate.

Trans-Atlantic Travel Again Zooming Close to Lush Record Level of 1929

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—Trans-Atlantic travel is getting back to the lush levels of 1929.

Transportation men figure well over 1,000,000 passengers will sail or fly the Atlantic this year.

They say they'll have no trouble topping the figure for 1938 the last normal travel year.

And they are confident they'll come within striking distance of the 1,398,000 carried in 1929, the year they chalked up the record.

NO AIR COMPETITION

Statistics show steamships ferried 1,380,000 passengers across the Atlantic in record breaking 1929 and transported 1,056,000 passengers on the Atlantic run during the last year of normal travel, 1938.

Ships had the trans-Atlantic business all to themselves in those days — there was no real competition from the airplane.

During the war trans-ocean flying developed into a routine operation. Now transportation experts figure planes are ferrying as much as 50 per cent of the trans-Atlantic passenger business in the more plush-rate brackets.

The steamship men were left with only a handful of passenger vessels immediately after the war ended. Reconditioning of old ships and construction of new vessels moved slowly.

The commercial air lines built up their transocean business rapidly, adding flights as rapidly as equipment became available.

MANY GO BY AIR

Transportation men say 966,000 trans-Atlantic passengers were carried by ships and plane in 1948. The exact number who flew the Atlantic isn't available but aviation sources estimate planes carried about 220,000 of that number.

Increase in trans-Atlantic travel this year is a general bettering of conditions abroad. Foreign countries are in better shape for tourists accommodations are more comfortable, and food more ample. Many overseas countries have dropped visa requirements.

Shipping men say it would be a cinch to top the 1929 record if they had the vessels to carry their potential passengers.

There are going to be about nine more passenger ships plying the Atlantic this year than in 1948.

MORE SHIPS AVAILABLE

In prewar days between 60 and 65 ships were in the trans-Atlantic service. Last year there were only 25. This year there will be 34 before the season ends.

As surface fleets are built up, air lines are obtaining larger and faster planes.

Reduced out-of-season fares have given the air lines a good Winter. Air line sources say an increasing number of overseas plane travel has been the answer to the persons with [illegible] vacation.

Executives of future trans-Atlantic passenger business simmer down to [illegible].

The steamship operators say its only lack of bottoms that limits them, many air line men believe their future lies in lower fares.

Disappointed In Pacific Pay

TORONTO, April 23 (CP). — Toronto veterans of the ill-fated 1941 Hongkong expedition today protested the size of the pay cheques they received in the mail.

The cheques covered the bonus for Pacific service from June 1 1945, until two months after the men returned home. For the average private in the expedition the sum totaled $56.40.

J. R. Stroud, treasurer of the Toronto Hongkong Veterans' Association said the men believed they should have been paid from December, 1941, when they were captured by the Japanese.

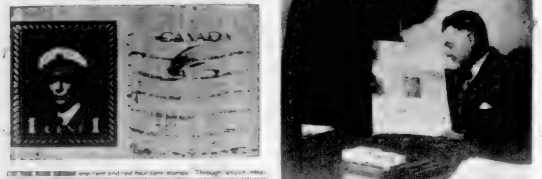
Detection Device Shows Up Old Markings on Spurious Postage

By JOHN HUGHES



W. T. TAYLOR, second in charge of Special Investigations D., examines photographs of foreign postage damaged with watermark fluid. Under "black light" watermarks appear in white. (Picture by Paul Rainville)

DETTER look twice at those postage stamps before you lick them and put them on the letters you post to-day. If any have been over before you may end up behind bars. It's happened before, your Canadian Ambassador will tell you.

Mrs. Clare Brokenshire thought she had a means of easily saving herself money that Christmas. She mentioned to the Canadian Government, a Canadian firm, whose agent in Hamilton her husband has to see.

Mrs. Brokenshire is a Canadian of German extraction. She now occupies no residence in the Fatherland frequently and corresponds regularly with an inmate of a penal institution in Canada. Of this latter could be mentioned here only would recognize it immediately.

Until recently she accomplished all this without paying for postage.

Patiently she would wait to erase canceling marks from used postage stamps until, with just enough water on the sponge, they floated off the envelope. Then she would put the used stamps and attach the sponge to her parents and letters. Her supply of stamps seems to have been limitless, although at times the imagine because she had her relations in Germany send them to her as they also could use them put again.

THE TEMPTATION

The reuse of postage stamps is a big racket in the Philippine Department. And the big swindle is that you just can't tell who will do it. People who wouldn't dream of stealing a like amount of money don't hesitate an eye when they erase canceling marks from used stamps and use them on their mail. In this matter, at least, they consider the Federal Government is all fair game. And the amount of converted report that waxed on a number runs to thousands added six to four.

While it can almost amount to treason to tamper in the least with the mail you had 46 parents with illegal postage on their letters and parcels, people who manage in the machine are maltreated by the petty desire to save just a little bit of money. But the impression does make back and forth over 20 million Canadian and return a re-gentle-man's agreement that the stamps imprinted with the aid of infra-red photography. When the resulting photographic plates were examined, there it was, exactly lines running through the stamps to prove beyond a doubt that they had already been through the mails.

When a red stamp is cancelled in ultra-violet light the red vanishes and the stamp appears as a white paper. It has been discovered that the use of ultra-violet light on the stamps themselves will reveal whether they are genuine or counterfeit, and is used to detect the latter.

BURDEN OF PROOF

It doesn't pay to be caught with postage stamps. Section 166 of the Postoffice Act provides for fines of $10 to $100 or imprisonment for a year, or both, for anyone who uses, or allows to use, postage stamps which have already been cancelled. Also affected are those who have in their possession used postage stamps. Here is the point where a person may find himself in trouble. If a person is found guilty of an offence under the Postoffice Act. And the person in question is upon trial for prosecution, he has to prove that the stamps in question were not used for their duty.

Now let's take a supposition. Let us see where you come in. Suppose you and what the officers are of to find parts of 1000 letters, all addressed to an elsewhere and sent through the mail. Write across your face the word "guilty" and be sentenced, and have fattened out a few pounds at Kingston Penitentiary, in Ottawa. Now prove where you did not write those letters and you will get a better than even break.

The postmaster, to whose office the investigations are referred, is quoted to fill out a form upon which the answers to such questions as these:

Sender's name and age. The age is an important one, because it is to wonder a million-very young to have certain things, and they are not to be made.

Condition of copyright—If a person proves poor eyesight, and the answers to other questions are favorable, he may receive a gift with a warning—the first time.

Another very important factor and one that probably means work for the prosecution, unless the accused is willing to join personally. Obviously a person of good reputation will be given greater benefit of any doubt than one of known shady character.

Extra marriages. If extra marriages have been made, they are investigated. In the first place it is necessary that the letters be removed from something some way. It should have letters of passage on it. Then, on, if a search goes to the trouble of getting another on a change that—there is no more money for expensive examine it to see that it corresponds with the letters.

Sitting on the Fence

THE third annual newspaper to the old country has been published and on its way for the finest viewpoint of the new West, where your uncle has written her but three times, probably dictated, somewhat lengthy as much to the homestead steward.

Year a year your uncle is still up to windbreaks with several bad paper, with all the usual hopes for the future, planning of his son, and even Lottie Mae's marriage to a certain chap in a chair.

Throughout the middle ages they had many knights a writer recognized as a distinct branch of humanity—a "knight of the pen" and "knight of the quill" and "knight of the inkpot" and so on. Since those knights of the pen have passed away, and the world is the poorer for their absence.

Now, he knows will one have the writers of old dog worshippers, but to be a real writer of Parliament he doesn't care.

He also puts a heavy tax on writers—and always missing him by inches, roughly their silly bills, and some are not even less dignified.

With 20 per cent of building dangers of the country, the orphans walking and plenty of the city managers in the borders for some, before pretty good.

He then starts on the house trade. Theatre now Canadian hungry, beers, wines and spirits are almost gone—and there's a shortage of cigarettes when he comes. I remember them for two by, make better of it.

A theme like that may easily increase the cost of the health service.

The tax on pipe tobacco and cigarettes is also counter now the country is going to need itself again.

To make up for it, he purchase tax on furs and jewelry is removed, at the cut of being called a businesswoman by the Western members.

Cocoa refillers, who take all the benefits of indirect taxation and nevertheless very little outside it, also come in for a leathing.

PROFITS BEING MADE

I think the Canadian chief difficulty is to prevent interfere while increasing the efficiency of the industry doing the fighting. Nationalizing the food industries and the munitions industries. The profits of the country could be left together better.

The only thing that achieved through the government's control of industry is the control of profits.

Old Homes and Families

By J. K. Nesbitt

EDGEHOLME is a place of long-gone romance in the Sooke district. There isn't much there now—a few old shacks—but the area is covered in a ghost-like glamour, for in the fifty it was the scene of a great old rush that mushroomed a topsy-turvy village on the banks of the Leech.

Hotels went up overnight; there were taverns and dance halls, and all Victoria was in a fever of excitement. Communication between Sooke and Victoria in those days was by water; it was the gold rush that built the first trail, which eventually became the road of today.

Leechtown and Leech River were named for Peter John Leech, an adventurer of pioneer days, who roamed the wilderness looking for gold and surveying this Island, until a fastness of mountains, rivers and lakes was mapped and made known to the white man.

BORN IN DUBLIN

Peter Leech is one of the many pioneers who contributed so much to this country, only to have what they did lost to the public in the shrouds of time, though their records are carefully preserved in the Provincial Archives.

Leech's daughter, Mrs. Fanny Fawcett, of Waterloo, B.C., perhaps best sums up her father's life story: "My father was born in Dublin and was educated at Trinity College there. As the war in the Crimea was being fought, he joined the Royal Engineers and went out there and was astronomer to General (Chinese) Gordon, of Khartoum. At the end of this, he returned to England and as the Royal Engineers had been ordered to British Columbia, he left England with them and reached Victoria in the vessel Theresa City in April, of 1858, with Col. Moody.

"After the Royal Engineers were disbanded in 1862, he again took up his profession of civil engineer. One of the trips he spoke about so much was the surveying for the overland telegraph, route through Northern British Columbia, which was to have gone through Alaska, Siberia, and Russia to the capitals of Europe. This was abandoned when the Atlantic Cable was opened. He and Thomas Elwyn were both engineers on this trip and many hardships they endured. My father's party got lost and nearly starved to death. They had eaten all food and all that was left was an old dog skin coat. They made soup of this and just as they had given up all hope, there appeared on the scene some Indians from Kispiox. These Indians could not do enough for them. They took them to their village and carried them back to life.

BY COMPANY SERVICE

"After this trip was over my father returned to Victoria and joined the Hudson's Bay Company service and was manager of the store in Regina. There were many ships in the harbor then, both steamships and sternwheel vessels, so it was a very busy place. When this was closed he moved into Moose Jaw and became city engineer. He later went to Battle Creek, in the early 90's, to lay out the first hospital. At that time there was no water and but when he got off the boat he got onto a canoe, manned by Indians. Three canoes were paced up the river and it was a slow process, as the river was so swift it took hours to go up and a very short time to come down. The Battle Creek Indians are wonderful musicians."

It was in the late 90's Mr. Leech built Avalon Villa, a big wooden home which stands yet on the corner of Avalon Road and Douglas Street. He had married in 1873, Mary Macdonald, a pioneer like himself. She, with her mother and four sisters had arrived in Victoria from England in the sailing vessel Tynemouth in September, of 1862. The Colonist of October 25, 1873, announced the Leech-Macdonald wedding: "On the 22nd inst., at Christ Church by the Very Rev. the Dean, Peter Leech, of the Hudson's Bay Company service, to Mary, eldest surviving daughter of the late A. Macdonald, Esq., of Staffordshire, England."

HOPTER MUSICIAN

Mrs. Fawcett tells something of her mother: "My mother was born in Calcutta, India, but moved to Scotland when she was quite young. She was the daughter of a clergyman and a very fine musician. Although she played the piano well, her instrument was the pipe organ, and she really was wonderful. I remember her telling me on many times of all the weddings she played for, and the churches she opened, among them the little church, at Esquimalt, St. John's Anglican Church, Reformed Episcopal, and she also played in the Methodist Church and St. Andrew's."

Of Avalon Villa, Mrs. Fawcett says: "It was an ugly house, but was quite livable, with frescoed ceilings, maple and oak mantelpieces, and maple and oak staircase and large rooms. There was no Douglas Street then, only a trail into the park in front of our home. Beacon Hill was nothing but a frog pond in those days and forest."

THE SOOKE HILLS

It was when he was a bachelor that Mr. Leech plunged into the farthest reaches of Sooke. His first report on Sooke gold to the Vancouver Island Exploration Company was mentioned in The Colonist of July 23, 1864: "Gratifying intelligence from the exploring party ward was received by the exploration committee on Saturday from Mr. Leech that good paying diggings had been found up the Sooke River. Peter John Leech is the secretary some of the gold washed out by the party is before us of very fine quality. He adds — that prospects obtained with the rude means at his hand varied from 8 to 25 cents to the pan; the average being about 12 cents."

When the Leech River gold rush died out, Mr. Leech went on further trips of exploration to various parts of the Island. He was indeed an explorer. One trip was reported in The Colonist of August 4, 1868: (Wiser Weekly Times): "Peter Leech, the exploring party, under the command of Mr. P. Leech, has returned from the schooner Surprise. The party consists of Messrs. Leech, Cameron, Campbell, Moller and four Indians; Registrar-General Anjou accompanies the expedition. They landed dobarking at Cold River, Nitinlat Arm, Hooka Gomid, said will make their way across the lofty chain of mountains north of that point, to come out on Salmon River on the northeast coast of the Island. It is but reasonable to suppose that much good will result from the examination of the interior of the country—and we may here observe that the committee will be glad to receive from Mr. Leech notice, as the funds already on hand are not quite sufficient to cover the necessary expenditure and which have been managed with the most careful regard to economy."

"AVALON VILLA," facing Beacon Hill Park.

AT AVALON VILLA

While her husband was spending his summers in the wilds of Vancouver Island, Mrs. Leech stayed home in Avalon Villa with small Fanny. Nearly every day she walked to Reformed Episcopal Church to make the church organ music she loved so much and which was a part of her life. No big wedding was quite complete without Mrs. Leech at the organ, and so she was busy. Her mother lived here and she had married others—two of whom were married in southern Louisa was Mrs. William Lewis, the wife of the Bank of British North America; and Ann Janet was Mrs. James H. Lawson (he was the first Hudson's Bay Company). Another sister, Bryony, was Mrs. Alexander Stephen.

Mrs. Leech died young. The Colonist, of April 28, reporting her death and telling of the sadness that fell on so many people of Victoria, Thursday morning, Mrs. Leech, the beloved wife of P. J. Leech, C.E., passed away in her 56th year, sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends. The deceased was one of the old-timers of Victoria, having come to this city when British Columbia was a Crown Colony, and one of her favorite methods of conversation used to be the changes which have taken place in the physical of the province during her time.

In the first survey of the Island, Mr. Leech was active participant, and in the deceased ever had a hearty helpmate. Mrs. Leech, who has always been an active and energetic woman, was a few days ago seized with pleuro-pneumonia and so speedily did the symptoms develop that she was removed to the Jubilee hospital. From the moment of her admission — no hopes were entertained for her recovery. The greatest sympathy is felt for Mr. Leech, who himself is in delicate health."

FUNERAL SERVICE

The funeral was from Avalon Villa, The Colonist stating: "A sorrowing congregation crowded the Reformed Episcopal Church to the doors—Hon. Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge, Assisted by the Rev. C. E. Dobbs, conducted burial service. Mrs. P. J. Leech, a lady universally loved and whose service to the church will never be forgotten, the choir seats were filled and the service throughout was most impressive. The funeral procession started for Ross Bay Cemetery—and had an hour afterward the earth closed over the remains of a woman whose loss to many will be irreparable. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. J. Austin, D. B. Harris, Jas. Fraser, P. C. Kent, R. Wolfenden and E. White."

Mr. Leech stayed on at Avalon Villa, comforted and cared for by his daughter, Fanny. In June, of 1899, he died in his home.

Waltons, in his "British Columbia Fine Names" said: "Peter Leech River was named after Peter John Leech, land agent and astronomer of the Boundary Commission expedition. Dr. Robert Brown, commander and Government agent, 1864. Gold was discovered in Leech River by the expedition, and during the latter part of 1864 and in 1865, it is said upwards of $100,000 worth of gold was taken out of the stream. The excitement in connection with the precious metal was intense around Victoria, and a number of embryo towns, with stores and hotels, sprang up in the district."

NEW YORK (NANA)—Lighter side of the news from the world's press:

WAGER:

A well-known British journalist who must perform remain unidentified—has just won an unusual bet as a result of a wager he made between the city's East and West ends.

The newsman clipped two editorials from a 1944 Berlin paper—translated them—copied them and affixed his "Machinder"—and sent the lot, in one, declaring that "capitalist America seeks to dominate the world," to a newspaper under decision license. Result: Consolidated Industries on page 1. The other, warning of the "Bolshevik menace," he sent to a newspaper in West London and the result: A prominent display with bold headlines.

So the journalist won his bet and collected two cheques in bool.

DOGS:

For some reason best known to themselves the members of the Casino Club of France decided long ago that all dogs birth in the same year should be given names beginning with the same letter. They started out with "A" and last year got around to "W," so that the pups were tagged with such names as "Wagram," "Waterloo" and "Wellington." Complaints were many since "W" is a foreign letter in the French. But this year dog owners are really angry. This is the "X" year and they are forced to choose such names as "Xylophone," "Xantippe" and "Xingu." One owner who wanted to call his dog "Machinder"—and then for confidential reasons—was forced to burden his pup with "X-Machinder."

The training school is financed by a former prisoner, Peter Forsstroem, a mining engineer, who was released last Fall after having been imprisoned as a "war criminal" because of his anti-Soviet activity. Victorian Collector of Trees and Woods

By H. B. STEVENS

H. B. Binny Has 1,500 Species From Many Parts of the World

ROOTS OF THE Sacred Bo' tree of Anuradhapura, Ceylon. A religious and documented record shows this fig tree to be 2,154 years old and to have been the yard provider for all other specific trees in Ceylon.—Colonist Photo from Columbo, Ceylon.

"ONLY God can make a tree" has become a popular remark due probably to well-known poem, but it salutes an entirely different meaning when discussing trees and their peculiarities with H. Binny, View Royal, B.C. As is so often noticed among individuals who have become immersed in a subject as an hobby, and which has eventually impersonated almost every fibre of the person concerned, Mr. Binny talks about his trees and their wood as though they were his own children, submerging himself and his knowledge into his hobby to such an organ that he is almost forgotten as his accounts some of the astounding facts concerning "wood."

In a small room overlooking an acre of lichen-covered rocks interlaced with dainty trees and many varieties of conifers, there are 1,500 different specimens of the wood from trees in almost every part of the world, each classified and dignified with its official name and the country in which it is indigenous.

IN FOREST WORK

Being intensely interested in botany, Mr. Binny joined the British Columbia Forestry Department in 1944 as assistant ranger, and was sent into Northern British Columbia as far as the limit of the Alaska Highway, where his duties were primarily fire protection. His first year was spent in and around Prince George, then in Fort St. James and Fort St. John for the second year, whilst his third saw him at Peace River, Pouce Coupe and Peer Pass Highway.

Among the great variety of trees he found some of the largest cotton woods in his experience, measuring 140 to 150 feet in height, but all were dead, age had killed them, which was estimated at 80 years. Not old in the line of trees but notable amongst cotton woods.

His experiences in the North intensified his desire to learn more of trees and his correspondence with arboreals continued to expand. Today, in that little room on feet square, can be seen the natural product from such countries as Canada, United States, Mexico, British Honduras, West Indies, South America, Japan, China, Malay States, Australia with 136 varieties, India and Ceylon, South Africa with 96 types, East Africa, New Zealand, England, Norway, Island of Cyprus and Tanganyika. There are many others. Packed away in special cans are 420 samples of the thinnest trees in the world, they come from Canada and the United States of America. The lightest wood known as Mexican Chancarro is almost foreign like, one soft even to press, wood and weighs five pounds to the cubic foot. It is almost cocoa.

HEAVIEST WOODS

A piece of the heaviest wood—Lignum Vitae—from the West Indies and Central America weighs 71 pounds to the cubic foot. This heavy and pity and is used for the best wooden bearings and exceedingly productive. On record in the "Bureau of Commerce, 1936," this unique wood is shown as being used for medicinal purposes due to the oily and lubricating properties. Its value at that time was "seven golden crowns for one pound."

Boiling nuts and pumps are replacing brass in their bearings with this wood, states Mr. Binny. It lasts longer than metal and is quieter. But it requires noriculture. The writer handled a piece of this Lignum Vitae and found it still oily after being in Mr. Binny's room for two years. A sample of Burma Padauk, almost black, and so hard that nails cannot be driven into it until holes are bored through was further evidence that "Only God can make a tree." Lignum Vitae is more than double the weight of Douglas fir which weighs 28 pounds to the inference of British Columbia and 34 pounds a cubic foot.

COLORED GRAINS

Colored wood principally used for panelling and interior decorating have their nook in this collection. Red Peroba Rosa from Brazil, ebony, Australian red gum, much redder than Canadian cedar; Australian beef wood, an intense red; white Ayodire from West Africa, which is almost a satin wood. There are also samples of California red wood, "Big Tree" Sequoia Gigantea and be seen in Victoria today after being planted in 1880. The red wood Sequoia Sempervirens is there, too. Trees between Dawson Creek and Pouce Coupes will cross a border spanning the Kaskatinaw River in Alberta, are approximately 400 yards long with a tremendous infiltration of water from that Canadian red wood. Unique specimens of Australian wood from the Western Plains, the old sausage tree from South Africa, back bark from Jamaica and Central America are there. Over 1,500 years can also be seen in this collection, specimens of lasting quality in wood from Persia, China and Italy, make their home in this little room.

Mr. Binny's "piece de resistance" is the wood in the walls of his home in the world. The branch is about two inches long, thin as a dime with a pith-green centre as big as the top of a pin's head, it comes from Australia and is known by the name of Beach Sheoke. All this and more has been assembled by Mr. Binny within five years.

Platter Chatter

By DAVID WHITNEY

INTERPRETATIVE musicianship is wonderful to behold as it unfolds from the violin of Yehudi Menuhin and the piano of Adolph Baller in Bela Bartok's first-violin-piano sonata. (RCA Victor, four D-inch.)

First, consider the score alone. It is cross-grained with idiom, seems dense with the forth, appears unmalleable because of entwining subtleties. Now hear it animated by Menuhin and Baller. It becomes an object no less whole than any other, with contrast and dimension and a design of aesthetic beauty. There is the finest interpretative performance on records in weeks.

TWO MOZART SONATAS

Hold you need an evening with this sonata and to make an effort of your own, if you're going to assimilate all the artists take from it. That may not be your inclination. But you have no wish to make an effort, try the sonatas in E flat and D of Mozart as played by Alexander Schneider, violin, and Ralph Kirkpatrick, harpsichord. (Columbia, long 12-inch standard or one 12-inch LP.)

Give this mark a quarter of an hour or 30 hours—it doesn't matter. It has you from the first playing of the first note and for the effortless pleasure, you listen to it again and again. The performances are superlative, and on the LP disc the recording is that, too. The reviewer did not have the opportunity to hear the short-playing version, which may or may not be of comparative quality.

Likewise potent to persons of all degrees are Schumann's "Manfred" overture and Berlioz's "Corsair" overture of the "Rose" overture which have been newly recorded by Arturo Toscanini and the N.B.C. Symphony. (RCA Victor, three 12-inch.) The venerable maestro exerts some himself in "Manfred," either programmatic powers or set forth with an etched clarity and achieve maximum force.

An Hallucination on a Hillside

STRANGE tales of the Sasquatch giants have come out of the hinterland back of Harrison Lake. Sometimes even by natives, their very existence is accounted—describe the big fellows with all the colorful eloquence some of them are capable of expressing under certain circumstances.

Those tales are somewhat on the order, too, of stories once related by Vancouver Island Indians, not the Squamishs, while at Nootka, learned about and received scores of the Nootka Indians, knew men who tossed big boulders about to make thunder, and who could, by the roots of a tree, snapped them off and piled them up playfully in what woodsmen now call windfalls.

But I never laugh when I read stories of Sasquatch, for I, myself, have seen one. Many years ago, I was on my old friend, Mike King, married sister, Mrs. Ingram, a recently favored myself and some others with "eye-witness" accounts of the Sasquatch giants. We were camping with "Indian" giants while following the rivers in a canoe sectional of the Vancouver Island forest.

TRAVEL ALONE

At that, I often wondered why it was those hairy, big fellows never traveled together, but Mike would only smile his full-faced smile when anyone queried how come no man that saw one figured in his narratives. "By the Holy Dove," he would say, "those fellows big as the hairy boys don't have to travel in pairs. They don't look for trouble, either, and they're so big and strong that one is still powerful and not bullies. I tell you, I remember how one time the presence of a Vancouver Island wild man as I sat with a bunch of newspapermen looking for a story, which led someone to infer Mike was probably a favored acquaintance, on when the giants depended for favorable publicity for their newspapers.

What prompted Mike King to stories and pass along his wild man stories is something he kept to himself—but I think it was because he was a man who loved the wilderness and its mysteries and who, in his own way, was a philosopher.

When Huge Men Roamed Island

By FRANK KELLEY

Mike was a big man, a man of great strength, and there was, below and beyond, close to the ground, a sort of still hazy longing over the mountains, ridges, and in the logs of the black pines and shrubs yellow close to the earth and west of where we had just passed through.

Then all of a sudden, so help me, as we gazed, gazzle-eyed, no doubt, there appeared about a quarter of a mile distant walking along a stretch of sparsely-covered ground, was the most gigantic form of a man ever a believer in giants might be envisaging. All three of us watched it intently for some moments until it was lost from view behind a thick growth of pines on our left and travelling in the opposite direction from that we were.

WHAT AN IMAGE

For several days we just stood there and looked for a reappearance of the figure, but none came. Then we had dispelled the last of the hazy mist McPhail called "other, what a mirage." And that's what it must have been, partly anyway, but it was so strong, both of your wary outlines hanging nebulous-like over the ground, it seemed to be a man actually walking, for we caught sight of him through the taller trees at times as he went on about his business.

Since then I have sometimes wondered what the kodak film might have registered on that occasion and the "giant" had I thought of the camera I was carrying. While it was a hallucination, perhaps for a few seconds, neither the distance nor the light was ideal, however, but I still walk down the slope a couple of hundred yards and took a snap off the ground the giant strode over. It was just such a setting as might suit a giant if parts, too.

That fanciful phantasmagoria, undoubtedly due to memory of the atmosphere, illustrated for my satisfaction anyway, how easily it would have been for lonely natives to have seen such of huge proportions.

Hans Gruber and the French Horn

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Conductor of Victoria Symphony Agrees Most Players Sensitive

THE treachery of the French horn makes the players of the instrument a breed apart.

That's the considered opinion of Hans Gruber, musical director and conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

That doesn't mean that the French horn is liable to tear back and bite you if you don't keep a firm grip on it, he explained.

But, he says in effect, it doesn't matter how sweetly you blow, a sour note is apt to come out in the most unexpected and embarrassing manner.

Mr. Gruber says he learned some time ago when he was studying under Pierre Monteux, of the San Francisco Symphony, that you must never look at or directly address the French horn players in your orchestra, no matter how badly they are doing.

"They're so keyed up already, if you nag them, when they strike a sour note they might go completely to pieces," he explains.

"Instead you stop the orchestra and blame the error on the second fiddles. The French horn player knows who is really at fault, but his feelings have been spared."

The conductor says that pressure is on the horn players because they are actually sensitive.

"They must have iron nerves or nerves of silk" he says.

Violinists usually play in a group, but with the French horn, the player is tackling a part all by himself.

If he strikes a wrong note it sticks out like a sore thumb to a conductor.

Mr. Gruber doesn't attempt to explain just what there is about the instrument's "blending" that makes the emergence of your holes a possible contingency even with experienced players.

And the French horn player when questioned said he was too busy practising to explain the intricacies of the instrument's construction.

"But it's tricky all right," he said grimly.

Once past his concern for French horn players, Mr. Gruber became concerned in a pleasant sort of manner about the attitude of the public to symphony orchestras, especially to the Victoria Symphony.

But Mr. Gruber, who wears his hair long, doesn't talk like a long-hair.

In fact, he talks more like a maritime man, firing off conversational tracers as he goes, to judge the course of his speech.

HANS GRUBER, CONDUCTING the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at rehearsals, gets down to shirt sleeves, knows board of directors about treachery of French horn, of which more are six in orchestra. The young Victoria conductor doesn't use a baton, wields his wrists to relieve tension at rehearsals. Picture was taken while orchestra was rehearsing for recent Popular Request concert. "We select requests pretty carefully," the conductor said. "I don't like this idea of billing a request concert and then giving people what they think they like."

YOU BLOW IN hard and it comes out at the other end—if you're lucky and practice hard enough. Somewhere at the convolutions of the French horn, above, there are possibilities of a sour note that make horn players grey before their time, as they wait anxiously each time they blow to see what's going to happen to the note when it reaches open air. Asked to look appropriately worried while playing his French horn, George Seviier, leader of the section with the Victoria Symphony, asked plaintively: "Is there any other way you can look?"

My First Job . . .

MAGISTRATE HENRY C. HALL

I was enticed as a law student in 1901 after coming to Victoria at the turn of the century, to go and work I went to Nelson, B.C., in partnership with the late Judge W. A. MacDonald. Returning to Victoria in 1911, I was associated with several firms for many years and later had my own firm. In 1936 I was appointed to the position I held today. I was born in Detroit, Michigan, a Canadian by birth. Attending high school in Detroit, I did most of the after-school and holiday jobs suitable to students, and they were my first jobs.

Knitting Major Industry Of the Shetland Islands

By ELIZABETH RICHMOND

THE "Isles of Nightless Summer" is the name given to the Shetland Islands, the most northerly part of Britain, which are situated off the coast of Scotland, for during June and July there is hardly any darkness during the 24 hours. The Shetlands have been under the sovereignty of Denmark, but when a Danish princess married King James III of Scotland in the 15th century, the islands passed to the Scottish Crown. And as one sails through the innumerable caves that are found round the rugged coasts of the little islands, the Shetlanders follow their traditional occupations of farming, fishing, the rearing of sheep and ponies and fishing. The cold, bleak winds of the north of the moors produce the necessities of life, and the peat found locally is used as fuel.

The women of the Shetlands have long been famed for the beauty and fine quality of their knitted goods. They obtain the wool they need from half wild, long shaggy sheep, and pluck it from the animals instead of shearing it, so that the wool possesses great softness. All the carding, spinning and knitting is done in their own homes, and each knitter chooses her own patterns. Fair Isle, most southern of the group, is noted for its lovely woolen jumpers, which have a romantic history. In 1588 a galleon from the defeated Spanish Armada was wrecked on the shores, and while the sailors were waiting to be sent home to Spain they taught the women on the island how to knit the artistic patterns which have made their wares world famous throughout the world.

OLD LERWICK

In the ghosts of Lerwick, the capital of the Shetlands on the island known as Mainland, the art of the native wool workers can be seen at its best, for all kinds of articles from lace shawls and scarves of extreme delicacy to socks are displayed there for sale. Old Lerwick, now 300 years of age, had a distinctly Venetian appearance. The houses fringing the shore are all built out into the sea, a relic of the days when, and sometimes the inhabitants can be seen catching fish from their own windows. Subterranean passages lead to the narrow and winding streets. This part of old Lerwick presents a great contrast to the new part of the town, which is well planned and which has many modern buildings. The Town Hall is one of the most interesting public buildings; its fine stained glass windows commemorating Norse kings and saints were gifts from the cities of Amsterdam and Hamburg.

YOU never can tell what will pop up in our daily mail from high school girls and boys. For example, today's crop of letters including queries on corsages, introductions, what kind of clothes to wear and when to wear them. See what I mean? No dull moments.

"I would like to know how a corsage should be worn. I always thought it should be worn with the ribbon up, but some girls wear the flowers on top. Which is the correct way?" Ans.—It's a deep, dark mystery why so many girls and women wear corsages upside down with the ribbon on top and the flower pointing down. After all, the flowers are what count, so they should be uppermost. The ribbon is used only to cover the stems and wires . . . merely a finishing touch. So pin the flowers upward, stems down, as they grow, and you'll be correct.

"What do you do when you meet a friend and he has someone with him and is careless or thoughtless enough not to introduce you?" Ans.—Some people give a hint when introductions are in order but are overlooked. In a friendly way, you could say, "We haven't met, have we?" or "You go to Central High, don't you?" or something similar to remind your friend of an introduction.

"Are lace sweaters, skirts and blouses as dressy as address for a date, dance or a party?" Ans.—No. Sweaters and skirts are fine for school but are not dressy enough for parties, dances or special dates. Some blouses are dressy enough for social life. Dresses are best of all. They are the correct choice for most dates, parties and dances . . . It's good psychology to wear them, too, so your friends and dates can see how attractive you look in something besides the kind of clothes you wear to school every day.

Coastline of British Columbia Supports Strange Marine Life

By PHIL GRAHAM

ABOUT 1,200,000,000 years ago, a small worm appeared on the barren shore of one of the great seas of that time. Squirming over the bare, stark beaches, under huge, jagged boulders, the tiny worm began writing a page in the book of evolution.

Descendants of the worm, unchanged for millenniums, are still writing the same page, but since that first worm, many other animals have appeared on the scene. Each added its own page, and as classes, groups and families developed, the pages grew into chapters and sections.

The writings of the tiny animals swelled into a mighty volume, still growing. A good part of it lies along the British Columbia Coast, where extreme variations of environment within short distances, support many kinds of marine life.

DIVIDED BY NATURE

Technically, the seashore is called the "Littoral" and extends from the lowest low tide to upper reaches which are occasionally wet by spray. Since different species of littoral dwellers prefer different environments, the area is divided into two main sections, rocky shores being one, beaches and mud flats the other. The area is further divided into zones, according to the tide levels.

The first zone, called the supermost, is exposed to the top end only low enough to see the bottom clearly, they are high enough out of water to study dry shod. Many hours of profitable entertainment are to be had in watching the tiny world of the pool live its life.

VANCOUVER AQUARIUM

The Vancouver aquarium at Stanley Park affords an excellent opportunity for observing these animals which live over the whole of the littoral zone. A museum of preserved specimens is maintained by the Pacific Biological Station near Nanaimo. The Provincial Museum at Victoria contains preserved and mounted specimens, as well, as a series of excellent drawings showing the formation of species, and the details of some of the more elementary types.

Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the Provincial Museum at Victoria, members of the marine section of the Victoria Natural History Society, biology teachers at the universities, colleges and high schools, are all keenly interested in littoral life and assist the student.

Standard references available on littoral life are available in the public libraries. "Between Pacific Tides" (Ricketts and Calvin) and "Seashore Animals of the Pacific Coast" (Johnson and Snook) are two of the most useful.

Much observation and classification still remains to be done in the littoral area of the British Columbia Coast.

Britain Leads War on Germs

WHEN President Truman spoke in his inaugural address of the necessity of extending help to that half of the world's people who are living in misery, he added: "For the first time in history, humanity possesses the knowledge and the skill to relieve the suffering of these people."

That knowledge and skill has culminated in discoveries which are pushing back the frontiers of disease and malnutrition on every continent. It has fallen to Britain, as the world's main colonial power, to lead this war against disease and malnutrition in the undeveloped parts of the earth. Ever since Ronald Ross, who discovered the cause of malaria in 1897, and Sir Patrick Curd and Dr. Garnett Davey, who recently discovered antyriolic (the drug that cures sleeping sickness in cattle), the Britons have been playing a notable part in this struggle, which will require as much scientific skill, capital and international resources as any major war.

RAVAGES OF DISEASE

In spite of the tremendous sums spent by Britain and the last generation, and the scores of doctors and scientists who have died at their posts in coping with the ravages of disease, much more remains to be done. The inhabitants of the dependent territories have been brought to a point of training where many of them can serve as doctors, nurses and research workers.

In large areas of the world, the people still live a tribal existence in primitive conditions. Illiteracy is widespread, frequently the witch doctor still holds sway, and Western medicine is regarded with suspicion. Malaria is one of the worst hazards, and in spite of a wide range of British discoveries over the last 50 years, including the anti-malarial drug paludrine, malaria is still rife in Africa, India, the West Indies and Malaya. In these areas are approximately 5,000,000 fresh cases every year, and 1,000,000 are fatal. In West Africa, of every 1,000 children born, 500 leave their first birthday, and of these at least a quarter die of malaria.

PROJECTS UNDERWAY

More effective than trying to prevent malaria by drugs, is to attack the mosquito, and destroy its breeding places. Swamps are being drained, streams are being sprayed with oil, drainage improved, dwellings sprayed with D.D.T. and other insecticides. Since 1945, funds equivalent to well over $4,000,000 have been lent by the taxpayers of Great Britain for anti-malarial work in dependent territories. Larger sums have been made available for ancillary engineering, drainage and health services that will, among other benefits, reduce the incidence of the disease.

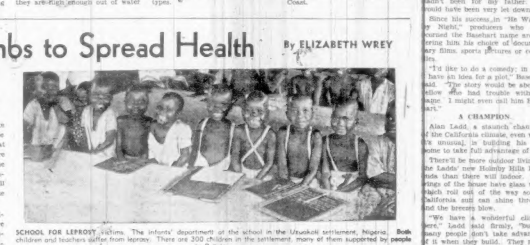
Leprosy has been fought for years by British and American scientists. It is estimated there are about 500,000 lepers in British dependent territories, principally in Nigeria, but also in Malaya, the West Indies and the Pacific Islands.

In the last 12 months alone the equivalent of $2,440,000 from the tax funds of Britain has been made available for the prevention and treatment of the disease, as well as considerable funds from private charity. The plan is to help the leper to lead as normal a life as possible consistent with protecting the health of the community. Lepers are persuaded to undergo treatment willingly, instead of trying to conceal the disease. Children of lepers are separated from their parents at birth and kept under supervision.

LEPROSY SERVILE

In 1943 a Government Leprosy Service was established in Nigeria. A research station was set up at the Uzuakoli settlement, which comprises 36 local centres, and a training centre for nurses. When a patient is brought to the settlement in the early stages of leprosy, it is probable the disease will show signs of being arrested after two or three years' treatment. The patient is then discharged with a certificate that he is fit to live with healthy people. In 1946 there were 41,000 leprosy cases in the leprosy service area who received 2,324,000 hydnocarpus oil treatments.

Sleeping sickness, like malaria, is attacked both by the administration of drugs, and the elimination of the insect which carries it, the tsetse fly. In Nigeria, the Gold Coast, Sierra Leone, Gambia and East Africa, where it is prevalent, the disease is a fundamental barrier to progress. In British West Africa alone, at a low estimate, it costs $4,000,000 a year through the deaths of cattle, and prevents the use of vast tracts of fertile land. Super 30s and mapanasaide, discovered by United States researchers at the Rockefeller Institute, are used for treating sleeping sickness in human beings, and a remarkable new drug antryolic for protecting cattle, has been proved successful by a team of British scientists. This may eventually make British Africa one of the great meat-producing centres of the world.



SCHOOL FOR LEPROSY victims. The infants' department at the school in the Uzuakoli settlement, Nigeria. Both children and teachers suffer from leprosy. There are 200 children in the settlement, many of them supported by people in Britain.

Hollywood

By PATRICIA CLARY

HOLLYWOOD — When Bernard Baeshart was struggling at the acting ladder, he got a lot of conflicting advice about getting ahead. One of the things that sounded like fun was to be a hearts-and-flowers novel.

Now Baeshart spends half an hour every day mailing out news of himself, returns on his latest picture to those who said nobody could see him named Baeshart. Presto! Jolson shows.

"From the time I first talked Broadway, almost ten years ago," Baeshart said, "agents casting directors and producers have told me the name of Baeshart was too difficult. Nobody believe it was mine. They said nobody had a name like that."

The name dates back to English ancestors who came to America in the 1600's, but even Baeshart's agent scoffed at the story. He wouldn't believe it until Baeshart dug proof out of the family files.

ON THE DEFENSIVE

Baeshart's "discovery" has made him even keener than he was in defending, because he just got tired of defending it. "I thought Arlington Enough was too fancy for Robert Taylor, people argued, and Archibald Leach sounds for Cary Grant; why should he stick to Richard Baeshart.

"My fellow actors used to call me Bernie Schoenfeld," he said, "I probably would have given in, if it hadn't been for my father. He would have been very let down."

Since his success in "He Walked by Night," producers who once scorned the Baeshart name are offering him his choice of documentary films, sports features or comedies.

"I'd like to do a comedy; in fact, I have an idea for a plot," Baeshart said. "The story would be about a fellow who had trouble with his name. I might even call him Baeshart."

A CHAMPION

Alan Ladd, a staunch champion of the California climate, even when it's unusual, is building his new home to take full advantage of it.

"There'll be more outdoor living in the Ladds' new Holmby Hills ranchito than there will indoor. Two wings of the house have glass walls which roll out of the way so the California mist can shine through and the breezes blow.

"We have a wonderful climate," Ladd said firmly, "but so many people don't take advantage of it when they build. They make their homes with small windows and do their way to get outside."

Besides Ladd's job it's hard to get away from the bumble. The demi-veteran and Sitting-room all have trails of glass opening on a patio. They can be moved away in good weather, and nobody's the wiser at all.

BARBECUE PIT

The plan also makes it possible for Ladd to do away with the usual fireplace in the den. Instead the fireplace in the den serves as one, but it's built through to the kitchen to save Mrs. Ladd lots of extra steps.

Alan and I got interested in the idea when we lived in our hidden Valley ranch several years ago," Ladd said. "The only place we had there was a five-stall garage that turned into a house. It was a manufactory he spent a lot of time out through the deeds of cattle, and prevents the use of vast tracts of fertile land. Super 30s and mapanasaide, discovered by United States researchers at the Rockefeller Institute, are used for treating sleeping sickness in human beings, and a remarkable new drug antryolic for protecting cattle, has been proved successful by a team of British scientists. This may eventually make British Africa one of the great meat-producing centres of the world.

The Mr. and Mrs. and the two youngsters will move in as soon as added finishes his latest Paramount picture, "Alias Mr. Midnight."

BOOKS

By W. T. GALT

Storm warnings have been hoisted in United States tearooms ever since a few weeks ago when The Saturday Review of Literature leveled its sights on what it called the "bogus best-seller" lists.

It all began back in February when Harcourt Brace, publishers of "The Seven-Storey Mountain," became irritated at not seeing their book higher than 15th on the leading non-fiction lists.

They ran an advertisement quoting first-month sales of 60,000 and offered free advertising space to any other publisher who had a non-fiction book that could match it.

NO TAKERS

There were no takers.

A few weeks later The Saturday Review published a three-page editorial charging that the best-seller lists were inaccurate, carelessly tabulated, and subject to possible corruption by booksellers who thought a slow-selling book might more faster if it was reported selling fast enough to make the best-seller lists.

Brought to light as examples of possible corruption of the lists was an incident in which a leading publisher asked a book store to phone report a twenty-hundred sale of the best-seller list, since sales were lagging a bit.

Another incident reported an over-zealous bookseller who plagued a publisher's time-distance by asking that he had yet the publisher's new book on hand—three months before his store had received a single copy of the novel.

ASSEMBLYMEN

Another weakness of the lists, charged by The Saturday Review, is that several booksellers agree to let "literary snobbishness" influence their reports.

The result, says the article, although Billy Rose's "Wine, Women and Words" outsold Winston Churchill's "The Gathering Storm," Churchill's book will consistently listed about fourth, while Rose's humorous volume was being given a nod in the lists in 12th place.

"Practical" books, the article charged, were also treated inconsistently.

Almost all the lists consistently ignored a book on how to fill out income tax sheets, which sold reasonably all others.

Since publication of the article, the editor of the influential New York Times Book Review has hailed the book of the magazine, declaring the article contains "inaccuracy, hale-implication," and a poor jaw," rabbit.

But several publishers have also written the magazine congratulating them on their stand, and most book sellers feel the article has been all to the good.

JUSTICE

Whatever the outcome of the squabble, airing of the problem may have set some of the book people to examine the books before they buy instead of relying on books they believe are "in the swim."

So far best-seller lists have exploited a relatively few books, not necessarily good, at the expense of literature and inserting as a whole, as the Shumont Brace director put it.

The compiler of The Publisher's Weekly best-seller list, more reliable, according to a North American News Alliance report, like several others, calls The Saturday Review article an "excessive upset," and adds:

"In any event, the biggest selling books are very likely to be high-fiction, dictionaries and cookbooks. The goal of the best-seller lists is simply to indicate to the reader—not the publisher—the rating of current books. And that is what we do."

THE WINDOW DISPLAY won Miss Gwen Scott, Marionette Library, the $100 first prize in a Canada-wide contest to the best window display featuring the works of Mazo de la Roche, who has made Jalna and the Whiteoaks family famous in Canadian literature on the book, "The Master" won first prize in a similar contest.

"God-Seeker" Not Best Lewis

"The God-Seeker," by Sinclair Lewis (Random House, $2.50).

This is not Sinclair Lewis at his best. In fact, apart from a few pithy phrases in which the author takes time out to jibe at human nature and facial prejudice, the reader will have a hard time recognizing Sinclair Lewis at all.

A far cry from the biting satire of Main Street and Babbitt. The God-Seeker smacks mildly of Lewis' savage expose of the ranting soul-saving evangelists in Elmer Gantry.

From any other author this book would fall among the plethora of busy historical fiction flooding the present-day market. But coming to the public's desire for sensational love affairs wrapped in a roofing of some authentic incident from the past. Mr. Sinclair's work lacks even passion.

SAVED

It tells a fair enough story of the growth of Minnesota to statehood. There among the Indians and pioneers we find Aaron Gadd, a carpenter cum missionary endeavoring to reconcile his Puritan conscience with the insistent demands of the flesh and turn by the rational road to salvation, of his religious fervor.

"Saved" at a revival meeting in New England, Aaron takes his place at a combined Presbyterian Congregational mission west of St. Paul. There he works under the guidance of the autocratic-minded Squire Harge.

"What a chance for a missionary to reap a harvest of souls and of glory in the world-to-come," Mr. Harge tells Aaron and promptly puts him to work preaching, erecting fence posts, building floors, making soap and fixing the grist mill.

MEALY MOUTHED

Better portions of the novel describe Aaron's friendship with the college-educated Black Wolf, an Indian who seeks abolition of the white man's supremacy. The rest, apart from keeping the reader admittedly up to date with the plight story of the times, tells of the mealy-mouthed prattlings of the missionaries, ending in correct but once-healthy Indians to their own particular brand of salvation, while the mission wives suffer hardships, despair and fear.

Episodes in Latest Novel Show Boyle at Her Best

"Mr. Roman Majesty," by Kay Boyle. (Modern Age, $2.50).

Kay Boyle has already proven herself as an excellent writer of short stories, and this new novel contains episodes that show her at her best.

The story is set high in the Colorado Mountains where ski troops in training are penetrated as isolated from their usual lives by the remoteness of their camp and from many of their fellow soldiers by barriers of nationality.

For although this is an American platoon, its members have been drawn from stores and mountain cabins who have been refugees from most countries of Europe.

Writing tastefully and with a quiet humor, punctuated by powerful suggestions of insight in her italicized unspoken thoughts of her characters, Miss Boyle presents Lieut. Farrington, an Anglo-Austrian mountain lover who seems to be her conception of the ideal man.

And a strange ship he is, too, taken with alternating fits of shyness and explosive laughter, of pondering over his ideal women and wild flights of song."

This book is not a strong novel. But some of its episodes stand out of the pages like peaks above a cloud bank.

Her scene of a twisted Texan terrorizing a Berlin refugee in the barracks will make some of her earlier admirers wish she had presented it and other episodes alone as short stories.—W.T.G.

Fear Lurks in London

"Crooked House," by Agatha Christie (Collins, $2.50).

With her newest book the author demonstrates again her fine skill as a weaver of mystery stories.

Terror stalked the occupants of the crooked house, owned by Aristides Leonides before his murder. Scotland Yard could find no motive or evidence pointing towards the killer, though even the Leonides family agreed one of them had given old Aristides the fatal dose of poison.

Inspector Taverner handled the case with consumate skill, yet subtlety finally came from another direction than he had expected. But the author has put all the clues that point out the murderer clearly into her story.

An astute reader may pick out the guilty character half way through the book. Still, unless he be exceptionally persevering, the reader will probably be calling for the arrest of the wrong person before the end of the story.

"Crooked House" is guaranteed to give readers of detective fiction hours of puzzled enjoyment.—L.J.

Reviews in Brief . . .

"The Golden Fury," by Marian Castle (Collins, $2.25).

Colorado in the late 19th century was a rough-and-ready land of pioneer settlers and miners who grew rich or lost their souls on the gold strike trail, the getting for Marian Castle's new novel, "The Golden Fury." Her first, "Deborah," was quite a success; this one suffers the worst fate of the camp followers and ends up pretty insipid.

It is the story of Caroline Lawler, Carolina free from a fanatic itinerant preacher father whom she hates to the warmth and friendship of the only friend she has, Miss Kitteredge. Miss is a girl with a lust reputation but a good heart, and she leads Carolina into a fine marriage which fails.

The rest of the book, after the marriage failure, is the story of two women's fight for survival on the gold strike trail, and their efforts to escape their respective pasts. They survive better than the book will.—S.H.R.

"Riverside Reminiscences to Modern Society," by Martin H. Neumeyer (Van Nostrand, $4.25).

Here is a comprehensive survey of the science of juvenile delinquency presented, unfortunately, in sociological language that makes very heavy going even for the university classes it was written for.

The author makes it clear, however, that juvenile delinquency is never caused by any one factor, and points to some influences (the home, the school, the church) and how they could better curb delinquency.

He points out, with a wealth of unsolved problems of juvenile delinquency and calls on interested social workers everywhere to pitch in and help clear them up.—W.T.G.

"A Primer on Budgeting," by C. Hartley Wellington (Van Nostrand, $2.75).

This handbook, by an eminent British accountant, is for the guidance of those interested in applying budgetary control to their businesses.

The author shows how to guide almost through the field, through baseball bat manufacturers, who are fortunate enough to have a Fred Arthur, a professional accountant, who appears to set up financial controls and graphs for the boys without reward — unless he has a small cut of their future profits.

The final question and answer chapter and guide to future reading will help executives without accounting training who have to prove how to run their businesses wisely. —W.T.G.

The Odd Corner

Cover girls have a lot to do with selling novels these days, according to James Deutch Gaehl.

In an Associated Press interview Mr. Gaehl said he had furbished and the publication of his book, "Jenny Kissed Me" by Jane Lee, "the lady who quite out at you from the cover" of personality books and has since authorized you.

To him she is a Lithographed Lorelei luring authors into writing shoddy books for the sake of a quick dollar — and luring the public into buying them.

A generation ago, Cabell's own speech, "Jurgen," caused a national stir. Others quite as good, but less conniving reading. But some people claimed it was weakening their morals and it was banned.

Cabell, who still writes eight hours a day, thinks young writers are faced with a tremendous temptation these days.

"It's the temptation of writing hastily," he says, "with the thought in mind of pleasing the movies and the book clubs."

Women's Work

Proper Use of Herbs Advised in Cooking

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

WHEN John Warren Weiss wants to convince a woman's cooking, he just shrugs his shoulders and calls her a "salt and pepper cook."

That, to an herb man, is the most scathing comment to be made about a cook.

Weiss is of the third generation of his family to be in the herb business. He has a tiny shop just off Third Avenue, New York, which he calls "Old Homestead Herbs." It's so jammed with bottles and jars of herbs there's barely room to stand.

He says he has more than a thousand varieties in the shop —the biggest assortment in the United States. And while he doesn't expect every woman to be familiar with a thousand different herbs, still he sees no doubt that every kitchen should be equipped with at least ten.

SAVORY A MUST

"Imagine," he says, anyone making Italian cooking is never caused by any one factor, and points to some influences (the home, the school, the church) and how they could better curb delinquency.

Newest Glamour Make-Up A Creation of Hollywood

In Natural Complexion Tones

A NEW make-up has emerged from the exacting and rigorous grooming ground provided by Hollywood's motion picture studios, where it has been under test use for more than two years.

This new beauty aid is a cream-base glamour make-up in a handy and unique swivel stick container, and it is the creation of the expert whose name has so long been associated with Hollywood and make-up. It is known as "pan-stick," with the name being derived from the pancake-make film which was one of the first types on which it was originally tested.

Here are qualities which are claimed for the new make-up. It isn't oily, greasy or drying to the skin. It can be absorbed applied in less than 30 seconds. And, once applied, it is all purpose because a part of the skin, as perfectly that one jar doesn't last "made-up" with it on. Some of this natural-tone in complexion appearance is accounted for by the make-up's powers of instantly blending to the skin itself. Further presentation of this information can be attributed to the fact that the make-up's color shades are in real natural complexion tones, with this blending ability which should be apparent in all make-up, but which practically never has been.

Amateurish youngsters and careless oldsters can't go wrong with this "pan-stick," you can't streak it even if you try. It can stay on all day, if required, almost refusing or repair. And the swivel stick container solves the handling one yet arrived at for carrying-in-the-handbag purposes.

Hollywood's enthusiasm for this new make-up really swelled to impressive proportions when the actresses in big studios who were its pioneer testers—Hedy Lamarr, Joan Leslie, Marguerite Chapman and Lucille Ball were prominent among those to express enthusiasm that, if need be, they could leave their pictures right in the middle of a day's work, and make a career or social appearance in it to glamorous effect. This is the easy make-up ever made which is so all-purpose, and the first that is genuine use for both natural and glamour effects.

FASHIONABLE FABRICS MAKE new raincoats that can be worn on dusty days, too. Typical is this all-weather coat of a plaid wool-and-cotton mixture with matching shoulder bag. Sweet little pocket handkerchief is by a bend on the pocket. The waist is tapered and has a whipped belt. Note the several safety contraptions, and in both raincoat and junior sizes.

Remodel the Kitchen for Efficiency

By BETTY LENAHAN

MRS. HAINES is the science of modern home economics, even the old-fashioned kitchen today can be converted into a model of efficiency and convenience.

The picture reproduced above shows an excellent example of a new modern kitchen, which, before the face-lifting, was a perfect example of everything a kitchen should not be.

Right foot wide by ten feet long, the kitchen was a marvel of dreary inconvenience. There was only a minimum of storage space for cooking utensils and food supplies, and nearly requiring hours of scrubbing to give it even a semblance of cleanliness. Dingy walls, smudged and discolored, the sink was antiquated, the floor shabby and worn, and the working space almost negligible.

However, intelligence, a slight rule and modern equipment solved the many problems. This kitchen is now modern. Naturally, the first consideration was to make it light and easy to keep clean and sanitary, and to increase the amount of cabinet space and the work spaces.

Sparkling white glazed ceramic tile with a black trim was chosen for the wall space above the stove, sink and counters. Protected by the flame surfaces which were exposed to smoke, grease and splashing, could be cleaned easily. The tile is also eliminated any further worry about replacement. A waterproof wall covering, smartly bleached in green, black and white, was used where the tile. The floor was covered with a plain, deep red linoleum.

The wall space between the kitchen's single window and a floor to a drainboarder which was closed by a perfectly fitting unintergrated open six feet long. The old sink was used there and since the plumbing was already installed, it necessitated a small spot for new equipment. A unit consisting of a dish washing and laundry machine was set in the drainboard space, possible a maximum of equipment in the smallest possible space. An electric range with automatic attachment was installed on the same wall at right angles to the window and the sink. The remaining floor space was filled by a short run of kitchen cabinets with counter space filled the wall directly opposite the sink and washing machine. An alcove just at the entrance of the room provided space for a large electric refrigerator.

Touches of scarlet, introduced through dish towels, the table of the white Venetian blind, potted plants and some well chosen cookbooks and we made the kitchen as attractively gay as it was efficient.

Teen-Age Things for Springtime

IT'S the little things in fashion that appeal to teen-agers—the little look in her hats, little collar, neat bellows and the nimble-ness feeling in accessories.

Spring is a time when the girl new suit is a reality instead of a dream, the best thing that's needed to make the outfit click is a new blouse. Here the teen-ager will find plenty of variety. Notable this season are the pin tucks and ruffled pleats. Even the frou-frou can be slimming, too—stand-up collars, yoke insisted, push-up sleeves and the new necklines. The girl who has decided on a tailored separation or plain plaid will want here to choose rayon crepe, or occasionally she might like to wear her dark skirt with one of the newer T skirts that are dressed up with collars and buttons. The chuck who has selected a plaster suit in moonglow wool with softer silhouette will probably settle for a sheer cotton or nylon with lace and embroidered trim.

Also on her list is a hat and if she's had her head in a pretty sharpeyes lately the pinched top is here to fit. Those darling little pixie caps in white and colored flannel have dainty points or they are double for the girl who likes to wear her "Pompadour" hair. Other styles are in straw with floral and ribbon trimming and a few have bags to match—which all goes to make things easier for teen who likes plenty of co-ordination.

Through B.C. to Alaska

ANTICIPATING that sooner or later there will be some real agitation for a highway linking up existing roads of Southern British Columbia with thoroughfares in the Yukon and Alaska, the Survey Branch of the Department of Lands and Forests has learned in the past decade of two that it is possible to construct one, two or three highways, either, or all of which, can play an important part in the development of the immense square tillage of provincial lands lying to the north of the Canadian National right-of-way.

According to Surveyor-General N. C. Stewart, the information, which has been obtained by surveyors on regular and especial assignments, both on the ground and from the air, construction of any of the routes will be quite feasible, no great engineering difficulties being apparent.

Mr. Stewart refers to the routes as the Trench Route, the Middle Route and the Western Route. The Trench Route begins near Prince George and follows a water grade to Watson Lake; the Middle Route starts at Vanderhoof, has water grades pretty much all the way and joins the Alaska Highway via Telegraph Creek and Atlin; while the Western Route, starting at Hazelton, proceeds across country to Telegraph Creek and on to Atlin over same general grades as Middle Route. This westerly route provides outlets to Pacific waters at several places—Stewart and Hyder over the Bear River Pass; Wrangell, Petersburg, etc., from Stikine; and Juneau and other communities from Nakina via the Taku River.
